15% Oil Cut For Homes Urged Upon Dealers

Customer Will Have to Stretch Supply Over Longer Period of Time

By James E. Ficken
Post Reporter

Fuel oil dealers here will be asked to make a 15 per cent "cutback" in oil supplies to their customers, the Commissioners' Fuel Oil Coordinating Committee revealed last night.

Under the "cutback" plan, consumers will receive normal delivery amounts but will be required to make them last 15 per cent longer, explained J. Thomas Kennedy, District director of Weights, Measures, and Markets, who heads the committee.

Thus a consumer who receives enough fuel oil to last 20 days under ordinary conditions will have to use it sparingly enough to make it last 23 days.

Kennedy said fuel oil industry representatives believe the average consumer can accomplish this by keeping home temperatures at 68 degrees or lower during the day, 6° degrees at night (with bedroom doors shut and radiators turned off).

"The (fuel oil) industry feels that if everybody cooperates in this conservation program we'll get by (with available oil supplies) in the City of Washington," Kennedy said.

Representatives of the Fuel Oil Division of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association agreed to ask its member dealers to support the plan after meeting yesterday afternoon with the coordinating committee, he announced.

More than 90 per cent of local fuel oil dealers are affiliated with the Merchants and Manufacturers Association, Kennedy said.

Kennedy explained that many dealers regulate deliveries to customers by using a "degree day" system. By this method, they determine how much fuel ordinarily is consumed by various type burners during any given period in the year.

Many dealers already are employing the 15 per cent "cutback" plan as a voluntary measure to conserve their own supplies, he said.

Winter's Onslaught Slated to Continue

Winter's onslaught will continue today with mostly sunny skies and a high temperature of about 24 degrees, the Weather Bureau said, following a drop to about 10 degrees during the night—a new low for the winter. Zero temperatures were predicted for the suburban areas.

Washington temperatures yesterday varied from 26 degrees at 12:02 a. m. to 18 above zero at 10:00 p. m., with .6 of an inch of snow.

State Department Acts to Protect Mother and Son

By the United Press

The State Department has received a report that an American woman and her 10-year-old son have been sentenced to death in Yugoslavia and will make "every possible effort" to prevent carrying out of the sentence if the report is true, a department official said last night.

The official said Undersecretary of State Robert A. Lovett has cabled United States Ambassador Cavendish W. Cannon in Belgrade about the reported kidnaping and sentencing of Mrs. Emma Dobeljak, a native of Farrell, Pa.

The official said it had received information from "unauthoritative sources" that Mrs. Dobeljak and her two children, Olivera, 8, and Stephan, 10, had been taken from their home in Yugoslavia and held incommunicado in prison.

Skidding Truck Demol

Traffic Accidents Kill 3 Men In Day in Greater Washington

Three men died yesterday as the result of traffic accidents in Greater Washington.

They were:

Master Sergt. Walter H. Arnston, USAF, 39, 50 Williamsburg rd., Alexandria; and William D. Rossee, 24, 1415 N. Hartford st., Arlington.

Brown died instantly about 3:15 p. m. when his Safeway Stores tractor-trailer truck skidded on ice on Route 211 near Merrifield, Va. and smashed into a concrete culvert. Brown was driving alone toward Washington, Fairfax County police said. They reported the truck demolished.

Arnston was pronounced dead at Alexandria Hospital about 8:30 a. m. after he had collapsed while trying to push his car off a patch of ice in the 2400 block of Duke st., Fairfax County. His wife was sitting in the car at the time, Fairfax police said. He was stationed at National Airport, accordng to police.

Rossee died at 4:10 a. m. in Arlington Hospital from injuries suffered when his auto collided with another car and crashed into a tree in Arlington last Sunday. It was Arlington's first traffic death of 1948.

In Washington a policeman, Pvt. George M. Bromley, 37, of 709 N. Dinwoodie st., Arlington, Va., suffered a possible skull fracture and lacerations when the scout car he was driving was struck by another automobile about 6 a. m. on Connecticut ave. nw. near 24th st.

While Making U-Turn.

Bromley, who was admitted to Emergency Hospital in an undetermined condition, was struck while making a U-turn by a car driven by John I. Kalivnetenos, 18, of 1341 Girard st. nw.

A three-car accident involving a police patrol car, a truck and a taxicab slightly injured a passenger in the cab, Tassis G. Pappis, 59, of 3105 M st. now. He was treated at Emergency Hospital and released after treatment.

The truck, driven by Robert H. Cohen, 20, of 3229 Walbridge st. nw., was going south on 13th st. nw., when it collided with a cab, driven by Ralph M. Hendricks, 38, of 419 6th st. nw. The cab skidded into the police car, driven by Pvt. George F. Offutt of 9315 Walden rd., Silver Spring, Md., attached to the Second Precinct.

Auto Hits Streetcar

Robert Webb, a sailor stationed at the Anacostia Receiving Station, received forehead cuts when the auto in which he was riding, driven by Russell C. Daye, jr., of Reedville, Va., collided with a streetcar operated by John Garvin, 27, of 3315 18th st. nw., on East Capitol st. at 8th st. ne. Webb's injuries did not require medical attention, police said.

Chief Murphy Defends His Transfer Plan

Fire Department At Efficiency Peak, Trial Board Is Told

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

Fire Chief Clement Murphy declared yesterday that his personnel transfer program has "greatly increased" the efficiency of his department, instead of reducing efficiency.

"The Fire Department today is more efficient than it has ever been," he stated.

Trial Board Chairman Austin F. Canfield has termed the rotation of fire fighters the "crux" of the nine "demoralization" charges against the fire chief.

Angle of Study Hinted

An indication of the possible disposition of this charge came when Canfield asked Murphy if he thought it likely that Murphy could sit down with his subordinate chiefs and work out a satisfactory rotation system.

Murphy first expressed doubt about this, but later said he would "absolutely" agree to meet them on that basis.

In a vigorous defense of his actions, marked by an impressive display of his memory of knowledge of individual firemen, places of service, position on promotion lists, etc., Murphy told Special As-

Chinese Aid Plan To Be Ready Soon, Marshall Writes

A definite Chinese aid program has been worked out by the State Department, Secretary of State Marshall said yesterday, but it isn't ready for Congress yet.

Marshall so told Senator Bridges (R., N. H.) in reply to a request for "immediate submission" of a Chinese assistance plan.

In a letter made public by Bridges, the Cabinet officer said the program first must be submitted to the National Advisory Council and to the Budget Bureau for review.

Saying this will be done "within the week," Marshall added that upon their examinations "the President will be in a position to submit the program to the Congress."

Stassen Insists Pauley Reaped 'Insider' Profit

Also Charges That 11 Other Traders Used U. S. Data

By The Associated Press

Harold E. Stassen, replying directly to written questions from Edwin W. Pauley, declared flatly last night that Pauley speculated at a big profit by using inside information he gained as a public official.

Stassen, a candidate for the Republican nomination for President, also told a Senate Appropriations Subcommittee that about 11 Administration "insiders," including five former Government officials, made five million dollars in profits in a "pattern of operations" similar to Pauley's.

This raised by one million dollars Stassen's estimate of January 9 of the profits he laid to "insiders" since the war.

Taking up the first of 21 questions submitted by Pauley, who is resigning as Assistant to the Secretary of the Army, Stassen said Pauley as a War Reparations commissioner participated in Government decisions on commodity questions.

"Do you accuse Pauley of trading on the basis of inside informtaion?" Chairman Ferguson (R., Mich.) read from the list of Pauley's questions.

Pauley Frowns

"I do," Stassen replied quietly at Pauley, sitting nearby, frowned.

"If answer to question No. 1 is 'yes', what specific items of inside information did Pauley trade on? When did he get them?" Ferguson continued.

"Continuously as he served as special (reparations) ambassador of the United States, as he served as assistant to the secretary of the Army and as he associated with government officials," Stassen replied, adding:

"He couldn't carry on his duties officially without having information that he could use privately for profiteering in food," Stassen declared.

Senator Green (D., R. I.) protested that Stassen had no proof that Pauley used his knowledge in trading. Pauley himself has specifically denied that he did so.

"He had top level knowledge of what this government was going to do no commodities this country

'Powerful Exhibits'

Two Letters Signed 'Esther' Bolster Laughlin's Defense

By Howard L. Dutkin
Post Reporter

The Government's case against Attorney James J. Laughlin and Dr. Henry L. Peckham, jr., charged with abortion on Mrs. Esther Pickard Hobbs, 23, erstwhile sweetheart of Laughlin, received a smashing blow yesterday.

The setback came in the form of two typewritten letters, signed Esther and addressed to Laughlin. One letter, dated May 16, 1947, said in part: "I want to say that you are not responsible for me being 'pregnent' and that you had nothing to do with the abortion . . ."

As the letters were placed in evidence, Chief Justice Bolithia Laws, presiding at the trial in District Court, commented: "These are very powerful exhibits for the defense."

He said the letter dated May 16 was "very powerful" in behalf of Laughlin, and another letter dated March 20, 1947, was "very powerful for both defendants."

"So important are they, that I will instruct the marshal to take charge of them," the jurist said.

The jury had been excused for some time prior to Laws' comments while a bench conference on admissibility of certain evidence was held and it did not hear the remarks.

The March 20 letter, which the defense contends was written in Laughlin's office, read:

"My Dearest Jim: Sorry I missed you. I waited until 6:30 thinking you would return. Just got an offer of a ride home (to Raleigh, N. C.) and am leaving right away. Will write from home. Please forgive me for what happened Sunday night. I am sorry. Love, Esther."

(The evening of March 20 had been mentioned by Government witnesses as the date Laughlin took Mrs. Hobbs to the home of

Churchill Urges Soviet Showdown

Pledges Support Of Bevin's 'Union' Proposal; To Move Slowly, Attlee Says

London, Jan. 23 (AP).—Winston Churchill today urged the "western democracies" to unite and "bring matters to a head" at once with the Soviet government before the Russians develop an atomic bomb, possibly in a year or two.

There is "very real danger" in delay, he warned.

Churchill voiced full Conservative support of a proposal for a western European union announced yesterday by Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin, but Prime Minister Attlee said Britain's Labor Government would move carefully in consolidating a bloc to halt Communist expansion.

Winding up a grave, two-day foreign policy debate in Commons, Attlee indirectly challenged Churchill's plea for a speedy East-West diplomatic showdown.

To Build Up Support

The Prime Minister said Britain planned "to get the idea (western European unity) formulated and propagated and then, through conversations, to build up support for it, rather than have some kind of dramatic gathering with a concrete plan in which all the difficulties would come out."

Churchill urged action now. He said that by taking the initiative in seeking a settlement with Russia the western nations would be following a course that offered the "best chance of preventing war."

Even then, he continued, there would be no guarantee that peace would be maintained, but if war came "we would have the best chance of coming out of it alive."

Bevin announced yesterday that the "time is ripe for the consolidation of western Europe" and revealed that Britain and France already had invited Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg to join in treaties designed to halt what he called the "tremendous expansion" of Russia and Communist attacks on the Marshall Plan.

No Customs Union Planned

Attlee indicated there was no thought at the present time of joining in a customs union with France or the Benelux (Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg) nations.

He also mentioned only the "political and economic integration" of western Europe—although French officials yesterday said in Paris that military treaties with the Benelux countries were being sought as well.

Attlee attacked Communism, just as Bevin and Churchill had done and served notice on Premier Stalin to "give up the idea that Britain is going to turn Communist."

Churchill appealed to his political opponents to rise above party in fostering the plan for western European unification.

He warned that "in trying to make a united Socialist Europe you are on the same level as trying to make a united Communist Europe. Others might try to make

U. S. Indorses European Bloc Plan of Bevin

By John M. Hightower
Associated Press Reporter

Britain's plan to organize a western European bloc was indorsed by the United States yesterday as a means of reinforcing "the efforts which our two countries have been making to lay the foundation for a firm peace."

While thus giving its support to the undertaking announced Thursday by Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin, the State Department carefully emphasized "European initiative" in forming the organization.

It apparently sought thereby both to encourage European leadership in forging ahead with the project and to counter possible Soviet charges that the whole thing is an American plot to dominate Europe.

The State Department said of the new British project:

"As in the case of the recovery program, the United States heartily welcomes European initiative in this respect, and any proposal looking to a closer material and spiritual link between the western European nations will serve to reinforce the efforts which our two countries have been making to lay the foundation for a firm peace."

The British plan appeared to be a political parallel to the Marshall Plan for European recovery, which has stressed the need for European countries to organize into an economic unit.

Bernard M. Baruch and John Foster Dulles, Republican foreign policy adviser, recently recommended that the United States sign mutual defense pacts with such a union of Marshall Plan countries, but neither Secretary of State Marshall nor any other ranking official has commented on their proposals.

Eisenhower Refuses to Run; Positive 'No' Expected to Aid Dewey Most, Hurt MacArthur

Bandit Makes $2000 Haul On M Street

'Old Ticket' Ruse Used to Gain Entry To Cleaning Shop After Closing Hour

A tall, lanky bandit with "the biggest gun I ever saw" late yesterday afternoon held up Irwin Cohen, manager of the Clothes Doctors, Inc., 3108 M st. nw., and fled with $2000.

Described as a Negro, with a small mustache, wearing a tan felt hat, dark coat, and Army battle jacket, the man ordered Cohen to put "it in a poke." With this, he offered a shopping bag which he had under his arm.

The loot represented $475 from a payroll, $1350 from the safe and the remainder from the day's receipts, which Cohen was preparing to lock after closing for the day.

The manager, 38, of 9626 Lawndale dr., Silver Spring, Md., told police the bandit appeared at the store, main offices of a cleaning and pressing system, about 5:30 p. m., and asked for clothing he had left there three months ago.

Asked if he had a ticket, the man said he did not, but would "go home and get it."

When he reappeared at the locked door shortly after closing time, Cohen said he admitted him and both went into the rear of the store where the clothing is kept. He produced a gun instead of the ticket, Cohen said.

Meanwhile, a series of thefts was reported by police.

Life Savings Stolen

Life savings of $2000 cash, Roy L. McDonald, 40, of 25 L st. ne., told police, were lifted from a box in a closet in his home. The thief also got away with "considerable" clothing, McDonald reported.

Cigarettes, cigars, candy and tobacco valued at $273 were reported stolen from Hillman's Market, 319 1st st. sw. The owner, Abraham L. Hillman, told police that 112 cigarette cartons and 17 boxes of cigars were among the missing goods.

Margaret Cassidy, 1630 R st. nw., told police her purse containing $75 in cash was stolen while she was shopping in a downtown store.

Law Declared No Bar to GSI Bargaining

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

GSI may legally bargain with the striking cafeteria workers' union, the Labor Department legal adviser declared yesterday.

In a detailed six-page statement addressed to Secretary of Labor Lewis B. Schwellenbach, Solicitor William S. Tyson advised that:

1. Present national policy encourages voluntary collective bargaining between employers and employes.

2. The Taft-Hartley Act does not prohibit employers from bargaining with unions even if the latter have not filed anti-Communist affidavits.

3. The Taft-Hartley Act does not disqualify unions from acting as bargaining representatives of workers if they have not signed the affidavits, "and does not, therefore, bar the employer from bargaining with the union."

Welcomes Interpretation

Oliver T. Palmer, chief negotiator for local 471, United Cafeteria and Restaurant Workers (UPW-CIO)—welcomed the interpretation.

The chief Government Services, Inc., negotiator, J. C. Niehuss, tended to dismiss the document as irrelevant.

Tyson, aided by several other department attorneys, prepared the interpretation at the request of Schwellenbach, who was ordered by the White House to attempt settlement of the 19-day-old dispute between the 1400 union members and GSI, which operates 42 cafeterias in Government buildings.

GSI has contended that it would be improper to bargain with the union unless the union signed anti-

Text of Eisenhower's Letter Taking Himself From Race

The text of General Eisenhower's letter to Leonard V. Finder, newspaper publisher, regarding the Republican presidential nomination follows:

Dear Mr. Finder:

YOUR letter and editorial have been on my desk for more than a week while I pondered the reply merited by your obvious concern for the Nation's welfare, and from a personal standpoint, by the honor you had done me. Months ago I thought that unqualified denial of political ambition would eliminate me from consideration in the coming campaign for the Presidency, because that office has, since the days of Washington, historically and properly fallen only to aspirants.

That some few would misinterpret or look for hidden meanings in my past expressions was expected and discounted, but my failure to convince thoughtful and earnest men, such as yourself, proves that I must make some amplification. This will necessarily partake of the laborious, due to the complexity of the factors that have influenced me to say no more than I have, but which dictate my decision that I am not available for and could not accept nomination to high political office.

GEN. DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER
"Not available"

I have heretofore refrained from making the bald statement that I would not accept nomination, although this has been my intention since the subject was first mentioned to me.

This omission seems to have been a mistake, since it has inadvertently misled sincere and disinterested Americans. But my reticence stemmed from cogent reasons. The first was that such an expression would smack of effrontery. I had and I have no desire to appear either as assuming that significant numbers of our peoples would actively interest themselves in me as a possible candidate, or to appear as lacking in respect and regard for the highest honor American citizens can confer upon one of their own body.

A SECOND and even deeper reason was a persistent doubt that I could phrase a flat refusal without appearing to violate that concept of duty to country which calls upon every good citizen to place no limitations upon his readiness to serve in any designated capacity. On this point it is my conviction, that, unless an individual feels some inner compulsion and special qualifications to enter the political arena, which I do not, a refusal to do so involves no violation of the highest standards of devotion to duty.

It was only the possible misinterpretation of my attitude that caused me concern and so long as I could believe that mere denial of political ambition would prevent serious misunderstanding and misdirected effort, I was reluctant to say more. It would seem almost superfluous for me to add that as long as I live I shall hold myself in instant readiness to respond to any call by the Government to military duty.

In full awareness, then, and not in violation of my own sense of duty, I have developed the following conclusions, which are responsible for my negative decision.

It is my conviction that the necessary and wise subordination of the military to civil power will be best sustained, and our people will have greater confidence that it is so sustained when lifelong professional soldiers in the absence of some obvious and over-riding reasons, abstain from seeking high political office. This truth has a possible inverse application. I would regard it as unalloyed tragedy for our country if ever should come the day when military commanders might be selected with an eye to their future potentialities in the political field rather than exclusively upon judgment as to their military abilities.

Politics is a profession; a serious, complicated and, in its true sense a noble one.

In the American scene I see no dearth of men fitted by training, talent, and integrity for national leadership. On the other hand, nothing in the international or domestic situation especially qualifies for the most important office in the world a man whose adult years have been spent in the country's military forces. At least this is true in my case.

I am deeply regretful if a too simple faith in the effectiveness of a plain denial has misled any considerable number concerning my intentions and so allowed them to spend time and effort under erroneous impressions. At the risk of appearing pompous, I must say that the honor paid me cannot fail to spur me, in future years, to work the more diligently for America, her youth, her veterans, and all her citizens, and for the continuance of peace.

I trust that this rather lengthy explanation will convince you that my conclusions are not only sound but have been arrived at objectively and have not been unduly influenced by my own desires and convenience. In any event, my decision to remove myself completely from the political scene is definite and positive. I know you will not object to my making this letter public to inform all interested persons that I could not accept nomination even under the remote circumstances that it were tendered me.

With warm personal regard,

Sincerely,

DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER.

Taft Retirement Bill Passes Senate, Goes to Conference

By Jerry Kluttz

The Senate yesterday passed by a voice vote and sent to a House-Senate conference the Taft bill to liberalize the Civil Service retirement system.

The bill is designed to benefit 1,500,000 Federal workers who are now covered by the retirement system, and 120,000 former employes who are retired on pensions. These are the main features of the legislation:

Increased pensions to retired employes. The Taft bill proposed that these pensions be increased each by a flat $300, or 25 per cent, whichever is smaller. The average increase would be 23 per cent.

However, Senator Williams (R., Del.) persuaded the Senate to adopt an amendment which would have the effect of reducing the average increase to around 15 per cent. Under his proposal, no retired employe could receive a pension greater than the amount he would receive if he retired now under the new formula laid down for computing annuities in the Taft bill.

The Williams amendment, if finally adopted, would require Civil Service to recompute each of the 120,000 annuities.

The bill would increase pensions of employes who will retire from 2 per cent in the high salary brackets to 25 per cent in the low-paid group. The average would be 15 per cent. Pensions would be computed by these two formulas:

1½ per cent of highest average salary for five years multiplied by years of service, or 1 per cent of such average salary plus $25 and multiplied by years of service.

The Williams amendment would require retired employes to use either of these two formulas in computing their new pensions if the flat $300, or 25 per cent, would give them larger pensions.

'Could Not Accept' Letter Elates All Candidates, Boosts Taft, Stassen Hopes

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower removed himself "completely" from the political arena yesterday, and thereby forced a new appraisal of the 1948 battle for the Presidency.

The famous soldier's resounding "No," which left no loopholes, caused rejoicing in the camps of all those with an eye on the White House, Democratic and Republican.

This seeming paradox was explained by the fact that all had regarded Ike as the big "threat" of '48.

On Capitol Hill, the consensus was that the chief beneficiary in the Republican field would be Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York.

In the event of a deadlock, the professionals agreed, Senator Arthur Vandenberg (R., Mich.) would be the best dark horse bet with Ike out of the picture.

Topped Truman in Poll

The Democrats, explaining their own jubilation, had only to point to the Gallup Poll. In a recent country-wide survey, this showed that Ike was the only man to top President Truman in the popular favor.

Nearly everybody agreed that General Eisenhower's act of renunciation had exploded whatever chance there was of Gen. Douglas MacArthur getting the GOP nomination. MacArthur himself, it was reported, had long been pondering the same kind of action.

Backers of Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio welcomed the dramatic development and predicted that their man now would begin to move up in the polls. They also were happy because, as they said, the GOP race now is narrowed down to men who have devoted a lifetime to politics.

The supporters of former Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota made an even better case than the Taft people. They said that Stassen undoubtedly would benefit because many of Ike's admirers were "Stassen's kind of people." They recalled that at the last American Legion convention there was a lot of talk about an Eisenhower-Stassen ticket.

Gen. Eisenhower, now 57, and soon to retire as Army Chief of Staff to become president of Columbia University, not only took himself out of the 1948 race but apparently slammed the door on any possible draft in '52.

No in Plain Language

He took his unequivocal stand in a letter to Leonard V. Finder, publisher of the Manchester Union-Leader, which was booming him for the Presidency. Finder had written the general to tell him about the situation in New Hampshire, where an Eisenhower slate had been entered for the March 9 presidential preferential primary.

"I am not available for and could not accept nomination for high political office," General Eisenhower said.

Again, toward the end of the letter, he said:

"My decision to remove myself completely from the political scene is definite and positive."

"Wrong" for Soldier to Run

The first reason that Ike listed for his "negative decision" was the one that attracted the most attention. He said:

"It is my conviction that the necessary and wise subordination of the military to civil power will be best sustained, and our people will have greater confidence that it is so sustained, when lifelong professional soldiers, in the absence of some obvious and overriding reason, abstain from seeking high political office. . . .

". . . Nothing in the international or domestic situation especially qualifies for the most important office in the world a man whose adult years have been spent in the country's military forces. At least this is true in my case."

Although Ike, as he said, was speaking only for himself, politicians thought that this passage would just about wreck the MacArthur boom.

The effect of General Eisenhower's statement was to enhance his prestige, already great; and, in the eyes of his admirers, to make was going to purchase and ship to foreign countries," Stassen replied.

He added that it didn't seem reasonable to assume that Pauley would disregard this knowledge when he was speculating on the markets.

"I think one of the truest things Mr. Pauley testified to before this committee was that he was not gambling," Stassen said.

Stassen declined to give the names of the 11 he said were profit-making "insiders."

He said, however, that two of them are Pauley and Ralph K. Davies, former petroleum administrator for war.

Graham Is Excluded

Stassen specifically excluded Brig. Gen. Wallace H. Graham, President Truman's personal physician, who he said was only a small operator.

Asked by Senator Tydings (D., Md.) whether he thinks the names will turn up in the committee's inquiry into speculation, Stassen declared:

"I am confident they will turn up unless the Department of Justice has taken all the brokers' records."

The subcommittee turned to a general discussion of reports of speculatoin in high places, temporarily diverting the spotlight from Pauley alone.

Cries "Falsehood!"

Pauley cried "Falsehood!" when Stassen declared that Pauley's trading followed a "pattern" closely linked to Government purchasing programs.

Tydings wanted to know whether any of the 11 "insiders" were ever employed by the Government, or whether all were linked to the Administration by other means.

Five of the nine other than Pauley and Davies, were formerly employed by the Government, Stassen said, and at least four of them were employed on January 1, 1946.

Stassen told the Subcommittee that Pauley "made more new purchases after he become Assistant to the Secretary of the Army than his total (market) position when he took the job."

Pauley, who demanded a chance to reply to Stassen's "pattern buying" statements face to face, has said previously that when he took the Army post September 4 he began to sell his holdings as fast as he reasonably could.

'Bought More Than Sold'

Pauley's total holdings at that time, said Stassen, were $1,359,601. He said that from then to the end of 1947 Pauley made new purchases or new transactions on the "short" side (anticipating a price decline) totaling $1,414,997 in "new speculation."

In another highlight of yesterday's testimony, Stassen said that Pauley made a quick profit of $40,175 after Secretary of Agriculture Anderson put out what the witness described as "an erroneous statement" which depressed grain prices last fall.

The statement, as quoted by Stassen, was to the effect that "we've plenty of wheat" and that its price then was unrealistically high.

Reporters asked Anderson yesterday about the statement. He didn't go into details in reply, merely saying that his remarks were a public statement that everybody knew about.

But Stassen added later, under sharp Democratic questioning, that he was not saying Anderson made a "false statement" deliberately or otherwise.

Limited to Pattern

Also, Stassen—a Republican presidential aspirant—told the subcommittee that he has no information that anyone in the Government furnished inside information to Pauley or to any other trader. Pauley is a special assistant to the Secretary of the Army.

"My information is limited to the pattern of operations," said Stassen who has contended that more than coincidence was involved in profits by "insiders."

"The lack of exact knowledge is the reason I have urged a complete investigation," he added.

Shouts Protests

Stassen's testimony on Pauley's transactions in grain and lard brought thunderous protests from the latter, who is a wealthy oil man in private life and former treasurer of the Democratic National Committee.

Pauley, who insisted that he never used any inside information on his admittedly profitable market ventures, demanded the right to answer "these falsehoods" of Stassen "face to face."

He shouted: "I am entitled to present my defense against those false charges made by that man there."

Chairman Ferguson (R., Mich.) said that Pauley would get a chance to testify. Pauley protested against the committee fitting its schedule to accommodate Stassen's speech-making engagements.

Stassen testified that last September 19, Secretary Anderson made "off the cuff" statements to the effect that grain prices then were not realistic.

Three Days Later

Stassen said that three days later after prices had dropped as a result of Anderson's remarks, Pauley bought wheat and oats. Then, the witness continued, the Department of Agriculture made heavy purchases which pushed the market up. Pauley then sold, with a profit of $33,475 on his wheat and $6700 on his oats, Stassen said.

Senator Green (D., R. I.) asked Stassen whether he was claiming that Anderson made a "false statement" about the grain situation unintentionally or deliberately.

"I didn't say he made a false statement," Stassen replied. "I said he made an erroneous statement, period."

Stassen also testified that Pauley had made $56,360 on lard and oil transactions "patterned" closely after Government buying programs.

Early in yesterday's hearings, Senator Tyding accused his Republican colleagues of conducting a "political" hearing.

Tydings said that Chairman Ferguson in "a secret, undemocratic and partisan gesture" had "suppressed" for two weeks a letter received from Pauley January 3.

Could Have Seen It

Ferguson said that the letter had been in the hands of the committee's staff ever since it was received. He said any committee member who wanted to could have seen it.

During the afternoon session Tydings brought out that Pauley was not in the wheat market in the period from June 30, 1946, to March, 1, 1947. Tydings said that during that period government purchases were high.

Pension Bill Passes Senate would be given benefits under the bill, a new feature of the retirement system. A widow, at age 50 or more, could be paid half of her husband's earned pension for the remainder of her life on his death. But the pension would be stopped if she remarries. A child could be paid $360 a year until he reaches 18, or a maximum of $900 a year for several children.

The employe contribution to the retirement system would be raised from 5 to 6 per cent.

Taft amended his bill on the floor to permit Federal service not covered by the retirement system to be counted toward an annuity without payment by the employe for the uncovered period. The present system has this feature. However, both Senators Williams and Byrd (D., Va.) strenuously objected to this feature.

Williams pointed out that a former congressman whose congressional service wasn't covered by the retirement act could get a Federal job for several weeks and be made eligible for retirement. At that point, Taft amended his bill to deny retirement benefits to persons who failed to come in under the retirement act when they had the opportunity.

The bill continues the present provision of a ceiling of 35 years of service that can be counted toward an annuity. The House-approved Stevenson bill has no service limit.

The Taft bill would give any employe on leaving the service after a minimum of 5 years the choice between drawing out his deductions in a lump sum, plus 3 per cent interest, or a pension. The House bill would guarantee a pension to any employe who serves at least 5 years.

The House bill would permit any laid off employe who had at least 25 years of service to draw a pension. This provision is not carried in the Senate bill.

The dollar-a-month so-called "tontine" charge made against all employes who resign voluntarily would be wiped out. Both bills propose it.

Williams proposed that a joint congressional committee be set up to investigate the many Federal pension systems with a view to merging them. His plan was defeated when Taft said the Congress already has enough committees.

Taft estimated the bill would cost the Government about 42 million dollars a year. He said the House approved Stevenson bill would cost about 84 million dollars. Taft is not a member of the Senate Civil Service Committee but he was the bill's floor manager and he guided through its approval. He said he got interested in the matter to try to reconcile the many differences on retirement legislation.

Senators Langer (R., N. Dak.) and Chavez (D., N. Mex.) who had teamed up to introduce the original retirement bill a year ago, both supported the Taft bill. Langer defended the Civil Service Commission and its officials after they had been attacked by Williams.

Because of the technical and complicated nature of the subject, the House Civil Service Committee may hold hearings on the Taft bill to determine the differences between it and the Stevenson measure. But the bill will go to a conference of both houses instead of back to the House committee as was feared yesterday.

Eisenhower Takes Himself Out of Race

him seem all the more desirable as a candidate for the Presidency.

In California, Oregon and in some other States, Eisenhower enthusiasts announced they would go ahead with their efforts to get the general's name on the ballot.

Hurrahing in Albany

One thing, however, seemed certain, and that was that the real wheelhorses in the Republican Party would have no part in such amateur efforts. Most of them had been opposed to Ike from the start, though they admired him as a soldier. They wanted one of their own, somebody who had started out by ringing doorbells and had come up through the ranks. Now they knew that they were going to get such a one, and it looked as if Ike's announcement would speed up the preconvention alignments behind various candidates.

In Albany, N. Y., Republicans were reported to be yelling "Hooray!" and saying that Ike had clinched the nomination for Gov. Dewey.

Eisenhower Backers Stunned

Many GOP politicians here agreed that Dewey had been helped, perhaps greatly, but they thought the word "clinched" was too strong. They said it still looked like a "wide open race" in their party.

Governor Dewey hopes to make a good showing in the New Hampshire primary, first in the country, and so get a bandwagon started. He might have done so even with Ike in the race there, but at least there was some doubt about it.

All that stands in the way of Dewey in New Hampshire now is former Governor Stassen. That could be a lot if the Eisenhower people line up behind Stassen, but last night they appeared stunned by the announcement that came out of the Pentagon. They hadn't even made up their minds whether to withdraw the Eisenhower slate of delegates from the primary. Under the law in that State, delegates can pledge themselves to a man without getting his permission.

Tobey Loath to Believe It

Dewey and Stassen later will tangle in the Wisconsin primary, April 6. Both must feel better about that contest as a result of Eisenhower's act and its effect on the MacArthur boom.

General MacArthur claims Wisconsin as his home State, and the possibility that a slate of MacArthur delegates would be entered there has confused the political picture greatly.

It was Dewey's whitewash of Wendell Willkie in Wisconsin in '44 that knocked Willkie out of the race and made the New Yorker a virtual certainty for the GOP nomination that year.

Senator Tobey (R., N. H.) who came out all the way for General Eisenhower a couple of weeks ago, seemed loath to believe that he was really out of the picture.

Vandenberg or Martin

Senator Tydings (D., Md.), who has been mentioned as a possible Democratic vice presidential nominee, said that Eisenhower's withdrawal "foretells the election next November of President Truman."

Representative Clarence Brown (R., Ohio) campaign manager for Senator Taft, said that the General's action made the probability of the Ohioan's nomination "more certain."

Before yesterday the speculation about Eisenhower usually envisoned a deadlock at Philadelphia, as in 1940, with the famous soldier moving in to break it and capture the nomination.

With Ike out of it, the man most talked about as a compromise candidate was Senator Vandenberg. There also was a good deal of talk about Speaker Joe Martin, whose stock has been rising of late.

Reds Stage Italian Strike

Rome, Jan. 23 (U.P.).—Communist labor unions, apparently following the new party blueprint for harassing the government, tested their strength today in a 24-hour general strike that paralyzed Florence and 49 surrounding towns.

Labor leaders and the three political parties in control of the government denounced the strike as Communist use of unions for antigovernment political struggles.

Police and Carabinieri maintained order in the strike, and banks and stock exchange offices functioned normally.

At Perugia, south of Florence, a two-hour strike was called this afternoon by the Chamber of Labor to protest police measures in recent demonstrations in that area. When a large crowd advanced on the prefecture and refused to halt, police threw tear gas bombs and dispersed the mob.

Italy's physicians also began a token strike to protest the administration of their national mutual assistance fund pension and relief program for members. The doctors announced they would refuse to dray up or sign any state certificates, but will continue normal practice and issuance of prescriptions to individual patients.

Reports from Florence said all transportation in the province had been halted and all stores, except bakeries, were closed. No newspapers appeared and most industries were shut down.

Cripps Flies to Paris For Currency Plea

Chancellor of Exchequer Sent to Dissuade French From Drastically Devaluing Franc

The British Government brought up its heaviest political artillery yesterday to dissuade France from a drastic devaluation of the franc.

It sent Sir Stafford Cripps, its Chancellor of the Exchequer, flying to Paris to prevent or delay action which the French had insisted on taking by tonight.

(French and British technicians were trying last night to work out a devaluation scheme that would allay British fears, the New York Herald Tribune reported from Paris. Cripps' visit paved the way for the technical talks.—Editor's note).

Here in Washington Lord Inverchapel, the British Ambassador, hurried to the White House and brought Under-secretary of State Lovett out of a Cabinet meeting to discuss the franc situation. Until their talk the United States Government had been reported neutral in the sharp and sudden British-French dispute over devaluation.

Later, however, it was learned that the United States now regarded the proposed French devaluation as a wrong method, taken at the wrong time, to achieve a wholly sound and necessary result of stabilizing monetary conditions in France.

Plan Foreign-Trade Franc

The French scheme, as reported from Paris, provided for a special franc for importers and exporters, at a rate of 216 to the dollar in place of the present official rate of 119. At the same time the French would permit free trading in francs within their borders, with the object of letting the franc find its true level—perhaps as low as 300 to the dollar—and incidentally inducing French gold and dollars to come out of hoarding.

Finance Minister Rene Mayer, the reported author of the plan, announced that a decision had to come by the end of the week, and that "circumstances will compel us to make it."

Whether or not this was a threat to act unilaterally, it raised at leeast three important issues:

1. For the French, it suggested that there might be a finanical collapse, with thepossible fall of the Schuman -government, if any thing were done to prevent the devaluation.

2. Fo rthe British, it opened a prospect of serious trade "dislocationn"—a word Cripps was reporte dto have used in Paris—and serious harm to sterling if differential rates were created as the French proposed.

the future of the Internatoinal Mo

3. Finally, it involved a threat to the fture of the International Monetary Fund, the 46-nation setup at Bretton Woods in 1944 to prevent future anarchy in the world's currencies.

Camille Gutt, managing director of the fund, has been reported strenuously opposed to the French scheme. Not only Great Britain, but Canada, the Netherlands, India and Czechoslovakia among other member-nations have opposed the French action. The United States, which until yesterday had not taken a stand, holds 32 per cent of the voting power in the Fund.

The Fund's rules, to which France subscribed, provide that no member may alter the exchange rate of its currency by more than 10 per cent without the Fund's approval. This is a device to prevent competitive devaluations of the kind that plagued world markets in the years between the wars.

Moreover the Fund's rules provide serious penalties for any nation which violates them. A dediant nation could not only be made "ineligible" for further advances from the Fund (France received $25,000,000 as a short-term advance last Spring but could also be cut off from the loans and other benefits of membership in the International Bank (France has already received $250,000,000 and has applied for another loan o fthe same amount.)

Think French Won't Persist

For these reasons, it was felt here yesterday that France would not dare to override the Fund's objections, although Pierre Mendes-France, her representative on the Fund's board, was instructed from Paris yesterday not to yield.

The United States has been encouraging France for months to put its finances in order, to strengthen its currency and to bring gold and dollars out of hoarding. The French, for their part, have asked the United States Treasury to help them get control of gold and dollars hoarded by their citizens in this country.

But the United States, according to informed sources, does not want to see sterling endangered by French action, and certainly does not want to see the International Monetary Fund flouted. It was assumed last night that a message to this effect was sent to the American Embassy in Paris for transmission to the French Government.

Reds to Resume Negotiations On Lend-Lease

Moscow, Jan. 23 (AP).—An announcement by Tass, Soviet news agency, said today Russia would resume negotiations shortly in Washington on a settlement of her lend-lease account which would take into "consideration all that was done by the Soviet Union and the Soviet army toward the Allied victory over Germany."

The Russians have stated on many occasions that their contribution to the war effort was far greater than that of any other ally. Many Soviet commentators have declared the United States made money out of the war while the Soviet Union suffered heavy losses.

One observer said that if the Russians go at the negotiations from this angle and put a dollar value on all that they did to defeat Hitler "they might come up with a tally sheet showing they don't owe the United States anything for lend-lease and this would include ships which the United States has said should be returned to America."

Clay Requests Funds to Feed Reich Better

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Gen. Lucius D. Clay yesterday presented a fairly optimistic report on the long-range economic outlook in western Germany but declared an increase in the Reich daily ration is vital.

The American commander in Germany asked Congress to vote 700 million dollars for feeding the British-American zone in the next fiscal year—an increase of 200 to 250 millions over the current outlay.

While the increase is largely due to the United States taking over most of the British share of feeding the area, better German crops and collection methods should permit raising the ration from 1550 to 1800 calories daily if granted, Clay said.

Unbelievably Low

The present German food quota, he said, is "unbelievably low." Americans consume about 4000 calories daily.

Clay held a press conference at the Pentagon yesterday between sessions of a closed meeting of the House Army Appropriations Subcommittee considering 1948 occupation force funds. Answering a barrage of questions from American and foreign reporters, the general said:

1. American officials in Europe have done everything possible to bring France into a trizonal agreement in western Germany. They have been recently criticized on this score.

Use of Ports Sought

2. Negotiations are under way with Belgium and Holland for the use of Antwerp and Rotterdam as ports for shipments to Germany, but officials have been unable to agree on port-handling charges which must come from appropriated funds.

3. German officials today are doing a better job of collecting produce from farms than the Nazis ever did, but must improve their methods to give industrial workers a fairer share of available food. He ruled out using American troops for the job, terming it a "police state" practice.

Strikes Could Be "Healthy"

4. Current food strikes can have a "healthy" political effect if they don't get out of hand. There is danger in Communist exploitation of the situation, which probably is directed by the Cominform—newly set up Communist International.

General Clay said that German production is up, coal output has risen despite a seasonal drop, and her balance of trade is favorable due to delays in American shipments. Adding that the dollar credits resulting from the latter are being "plowed back" into raw materials, Clay added that the trade outlook "is better than any time since I've been in Germany."

The 700-million-dollar request for feeding the Reich next year, he said, covers food, transport, seed and fertilizer.

51 to Be Installed

Fifty-one new congregational officers will be installed tomorrow at 11 a. m. at National Presbyterian Church, Connecticut ave. and N st. nw. The service will be conducted by Dr. Edward L. R. Elson, pastor.

Churchill Urges Showdown Before Russia Gets A-Bomb

a united liberal or Catholic or united rightwing Europe, all quarreling with each other."

Churchill himself launched a campaign for a united Europe about a year ago.

Before that, in a speech at Fulton, Mo., in March, 1946, he had called for close British-American fellowship amounting to an alliance, and declared that an "iron curtain" had descended across Europe from Stettin to Trieste.

Today he referred to that speech as prophetic. Although it had been coolly received then in both Britain and the United States. He said, it "has now become the accepted policy of the English-speaking world."

Princess Elizabeth Present

Britain's 73-year-old wartime Prime Minister, looking fully recovered from his recent illness, talked to crowded benches and packed galleries. Princess Elizabeth was present, hearing her first Commons Debate.

The conservative Party leader expressed the belief that chances were better now for reaching an agreement with Russia than "if we waited until the Soviet government had got their atomic weapons developed." He avoided any specific recommendatoins for what he termed a "realistic" settlement with Soviet leaders.

Declaring that "a great change has taken place" in American opinion on Greece, Churchill said:

"It was only four years ago that the views which we held so strongly about Greece were subject to widespread disapproval throughout the United States. Now the United States has entirely come across to our views and are acting in the same upright and disinterested spirit. My hope is that, having put their hands to the plow, the United States will not look back."

Court Recommends Newspaper Be Paid

Charleston, W. Va., Jan. 23 (AP).—The Court of Claims recommended today the payment of $250.80 to the Evening Journal Publishing Co. at Martinsburg for publication of legal notices under the delinquent lands law in February and March, 1943.

If approved by the Governor and the auditor, payment would be made from a 1947 special legislative appropriation.

Action before the Court of Claims became necessary because sections of the act under which the advertisements appeared were declared unconstitutional, and court actions in that connection had to be abandoned.

24-Hour Strike of Germans In U. S., Bavaria Zone Ends

Frankfurt, Germany (Saturday), Jan. 24 (U.P.).—The 24-hour, "We-Want-Food" strike of an estimated 1,500,000 workers in U. S. occupied Bavaria ended at one minute after midnight today.

First evidence that the strike had ended was the appearance of trainmen, who began resuming rail service between Munich, Nuernberg and other key cities.

But since few German factory workers work Saturdays, today will be the second day of a three-day holiday for most Bavarian workers. An exception are the coal miners who were expected to be on the job.

The walkout was called to protest alleged bungling of food distribution by the German administration of Bavaria. Last night the German Economic Council of the Anglo-American "Bizonia" approved emergency measures calling for a house-to-house and farm-to-farm census of food and offering premiums to farmers who exceed their production quotas.

Transportation and all but essential services were paralyzed. The Bavarian government estimated loss of production would reach 27 million reichsmarks ($2,700,000).

American Military Government authorities maintained a strict hands-off policy when workers held orderly demonstrations.

Only in Munich, the American zone's largest city, was there any sizeable gathering of strikers. Seventy thousand strikers gathered in the snow-covered Koenigsplatz while Hans Ehard, Minister President of Bavaria met for five hours with trade unionists. Ehard reversed a previous decision and said he would appeal to the American Military Government to help unravel the food situation.

Strike activity was sparse in the smaller towns and villages, but cities like Augsburg, Nuernberg, Regensburg, Wuerzburg, Bamberg and Frankfurt were disrupted by stoppages of streetcars, closing of factories, shops and other enterprises.

Unaffected by the walkout were more than 100,000 Bavarian employes of American Military Government and other Army units. They were specifically exempted by the unions as were emergency skeleton crews at hospitals, food-processing plants and communications personnel.

Wheat Consumption, Exports Reduce Supply 45% Since July

The Agriculture Department reported yesterday that about 45 per cent of this crop year's wheat supply was consumed or exported during the first half of the year.

The figure gave officials encouragement that President Truman's export goal of 500 million bushels of wheat for the crop year can be reached. Exports during the first half of the year were about 260 million bushels.

The crop year dates from July to July. The supply at the start of the year was 1,449,000,000 bushels.

The department said that on January 1 about 795 million bushels of this supply was still on hand—either held by farmers, mills, merchants, elevators or commercial concerns.

The amount of wheat used in this country and exported during the first half of the crop year was about 654 million bushels.

The January 1 supply must cover needs for food, feed and seed and provide a crop-year-end reserve of at least 150 million bushels as well as exports during the last half of the crop year.

A minimum year-end reserve, or "carryover" of 150 million bushels was directed by Congress in the Foreign Relief Act of 1947.

Inflation Pressure Eased By Hiking Bank Reserves

By The Associated Press

The Federal Reserve Board yesterday raised reserve requirements of New York and Chicago banks from 20 to 22 per cent of their net demand deposits, effective February 27.

The board explained its action is "a step towards restraining further inflationary expansion of bank credit."

The amount of reserve required limits the lending power of banks by withdrawing funds required as "reserves" from lending resources of the banks.

The increase still left reserve requirements at New York and Chicago banks four points under the maximum of 26 per cent that the Federal Reserve Board can order.

There had been indications earlier that the increase toward that maximum would be taken gradually, possibly in three steps.

A reserve board announcement said the effect of the percentage increase would be to raise required reserves of the New York banks by about 420 million dollars over the present $4,300,000,000 and to lift those in Chicago by nearly 100 million dollars more than the present 1 billion dollars.

Even with the increases, however, the banks in general have larger reserves than the maximum requirement so that the increase is not expected to cut back lending power immediately.

'Seriously Ill'

Sleeping Pills Hospitalize Kay Francis

KAY FRANCIS

HOWARD GRAHAM

Columbus, Ohio, Jan. 25 (AP).—Kay Francis, star of the play "State of the Union," became seriously ill from an overdose of sleeping pills today and police detained her stage manager for five hours while they investigated.

Howard Graham, 37, the stage manager, was released after the 43-year-old actress regained consciousness and confirmed Graham's story of what caused her illness.

Police took Graham into custody at White Cross Hospital, to which Miss Francis was removed about 7 a. m., when they found she had second-degree burns on her legs.

Graham had reported that he was called to her hotel room about 6:30 a. m.; that she fainted and she burned her legs on a radiator when he took her to a window in an effort to revive her.

Jay S. Teele, assistant chief of detectives, said:

"The detectives talked to her and she said she had been nervous and couldn't sleep. She had been taking these pills so she took more than she thought she was taking."

Miss Francis, who entered the movies in 1930 and has appeared in more than 50 films, remained in serious condition. After her stomach had been emptied with a stomach pump, her condition was reported as improved.

Dr. Maurice B. Rusoff, her physician, reported "her condition is serious, but not critical."

Reds Refuse U. N. Entry Into Korea

Lake Success, Jan. 23 (AP).—Russia today officially rebuffed the first attempt by the United Nation Assembly's Korean Independence Commission to enter the Soviet zone in northern Korea.

Andrei A. Gromyko, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister, notified the U. N. by letter that Russia maintained her "negative attitude" toward the commission. He refused to amplify but the U. N. delegats accepted it as a rejection of the commission bid.

Warren R. Auston, chief United States delegate here, told newsmen that the commission now in Seoul "ought to go ahead and organize the (United States-occupied) southern zone." Austin said this was only his personal view.

On other subjects under U. N. consideration: India denied Pakistan charges as "deliberate distortion" in their feud before the Security Council, and the Jewish Agency for Palestine called on the U. N. to set up a Jewish militia of 30,000 to 35,000 in Palestine.

Smart Safety

It is not an easy matter to keep the problems of traffic safety constantly before the public without becoming both maudlin and boring. The District Department of Vehicles and Traffic, in cooperation with 36 business, civic and fraternal organizations, has devised an ingenious and fresh approach to combat the motor vehicle accident menace. Rather than concentrate on one or two intensive campaigns that are at best effective only for short periods, the department plans to plug safety continually by emphasizing a different aspect and focusing on different media each month. January, for example, is drunken-driving month—and the department has brought together many interesting facts about what it means in Washington. Next month the stress will be on safe winter driving, and the campaigners hope to further their aim by such devices as rules on restaurant menus and reminders in weather forecasts.

Specifically with respect to drunken driving, the department has developed that the average person arrested on this charge is a 34-year-old male white-collar worker whose drinking leads to overconfidence. The average accident in which he is involved occurs between 9 and 10 p. m. on a Saturday, between intersections and in good weather. The fact that the driver who has been drinking is 55 times more likely to be involved in an accident than the non-drinking driver illustrates the insidiousness of the problem and explains why drunken driving was responsible for 5 deaths and 61 injuries last year. In this connection Traffic Director Keneipp is considering what we consider a well justified deterrent to repeaters, namely, a policy of not approving new operating permits for such persons for a full year after their conviction. Incidentally, a total of 4654 persons have lost driving privileges for drunken driving in Washington during the last decade.

The 1947 toll of 72 pedestrian deaths (65 of them caused by motor vehicles), 4668 injuries and 11,515 accidents ought to be enough reminder in itself of the importance of safe driving. Unfortunately, there is no way to get directly at the mind of the driver when he is behind a wheel. Thus the objective must continue so to impress vehicle operators with the consequences of carelessness that safety becomes a subconscious habit.

Palestine Contrasts

Refusal of Iraq to ratify the new military alliance with Britain leaves a gap in Britain's armed alliances with the Arab world which may lead to further appeasement of the Iraqi. Perhaps they want more arms for use against the Jews in Palestine. Fawzi El Kawji, supreme field commander of both the "volunteer invaders and Arab forces inside Palestine," would then be the beneficiary. This gentleman hails from Iraq, though he is a renegade, and, in addition, is one of the old pro-Nazi gang who has been involved in every plot against Britain since 1936. He is working in cahoots with the Mufti—the scoundrel who, according to Mr. Churchill, was Britain's worst enemy. It is all the more surprising to note the tenderness that the British are displaying toward these firebrands.

We may grant that the job of keeping order in Palestine is difficult, but the difficulty has not been lessened by the arms policy that the British have been pursuing. On the contrary, the job has been made impossible. The Arabs have noted the British decision to keep out the U. N. mission till the eve of their own departure in May. But what must have been more interesting to them as a spur to Arab recalcitrance is the arms traffic that the British have recently developed with Palestine's neighbors. The trouble-making in Palestine comes from outside, and since the U. N. decision the British have actually been shipping arms to Egypt, Iraq and Trans-Jordan, knowing full well that the arms would be used for the purpose of upsetting the U. N. decision. How in these circumstances could the British administration expect to keep order in Palestine?

The United States has been dragging its feet almost in step with the British. There is one way of restoring some semblance of order in Palestine, but on this way the Americans have turned their backs. This is to arm the Haganah, the Jewish defense militia. But as soon as the United Nations had recommended the plan of partition, the United States slapped an embargo on all arms shipments to the Middle East. Here is a picture of contrasts: the British are arming the Arab extremists and at the same time trying to keep order in Palestine, while we are shutting off all supplies. To cap all, the State Department has just issued instructions to the American consul in Jerusalem to take away the passports of American citizens found among the Jewish defense forces. This was not done when Americans enlisted in the Allied armies prior to our entry into the war. Why the ban is put on Americans in Palestine who are fighting in defense of a United Nations' decision to which this Government is a party is thus glaringly inconsistent with our traditional policy, let alone with our membership of the United Nations. Is it any wonder that the Arab extremists imagine they are getting aid and comfort from the chief props of the United Nations for defying the United Nations?

To be sure, the problem to be resolved depends upon the answer to the riddle of enforcement. It should have been faced squarely during the proceedings at Lake Success. Little Guatemala sought to give a lead by suggesting that an ad hoc force be raised among the noninterested powers in Palestine. That was done after the first war in respect of the Saar. Evidently the suggestion got no aid from either Britain or America. The next best thing is to bring up the matter before the Security Council. In the meantime fairness alone—let alone any regard for the U. N. recommendation—demands a raising of the arms embargo by this country. The pusillanimity of the Anglo-American powers is bringing on the tragedy they contemplate, for it is an advertisement to the intransigent Arabs that the scuttling of the U. N. decision would not be displeasing to either London or Washington.

Eisenhower Decides

General Eisenhower will add to his stature with the American people by the manner in which he has taken himself out of the race for the Presidency. His letter to Mr. Finder of Manchester, N. H., is the letter of a patriot and a statesman. Clearly a man of his attributes must have found himself in some embarrassment by the development of the Eisenhower boom. After all, he is still Chief of Staff, and he was being put in the position of seeming to encourage—by the vagueness of his language—the drive to run him in competition with his own Commander in Chief for his chief's job.

Nor did the embarrassment end there. Eisenhower must have felt some discomfort over his relations with the State Department, over which General Eisenhower's predecessor and former superior, Secretary Marshall, presides. If General Eisenhower were to have been nominated, he would doubtless have had to take issue with Secretary Marshall, if not over policy, at least over administration. At Columbia University, too, there must have been some eyebrow-raising, for the Chief of Staff is the university's president-elect. General Eisenhower, being a man of sensibility, was no doubt fully aware of all these involvements, and his decision to free himself from any suspicion of impropriety or disloyalty will have come, doubtless, as a profound relief to himself.

Why he did not make himself abundantly clear before is explained to our satisfaction in the letter to Mr. Finder. He found himself on the horns of a dilemma. To take the boom seriously he would have seemed to be taking himself overseriously, and, moreover, to be lacking in respect and regard for the Nation's highest honor. There was a second reason for his apparent coyness. That is that to phrase a flat refusal would have been to put him in a position of placing a limitation on his readiness to serve his country. The general's reasons do credit both to his heart and to his sense of duty.

It is our belief that the Chief of Staff, having divorced himself from presidential aspiration, has many a contribution still to make to America. Out of the Pentagon he will be one of our outstanding public men, ready to lend his towering name and his great reputation to the cause of enabling America to live up to its world responsibilities. His allegiance to American institutions has always marked him out for this service. It is reaffirmed in language composed of words of gold:

> It is my conviction that the necessary and wise subordination of the military to civil power will be best sustained, and our people will have greater confidence that it is so sustained, when lifelong professional soldiers, in the absence of some obvious and overriding reason, abstain from seeking high political office. This truth has a possible inverse application. I would regard it as unalloyed tragedy for our country if ever should come the day when military commanders might be selected with an eye to their future potentialities in the political field rather than exclusively upon judgment as to their military abilities.

Millions of Americans who would have had no qualms in making an exception in his case will find their conscience renewed by this high-minded declaration.

Unity: Looking Ahead

The British seem to have made up their minds as to the political orientation that coincides with their best interests. It is a jointure, step by step, with western Europe. Mr. Bevin minced no words in announcing a decision that has historical significance. Europa, in the sense of a bloc of the western European nations, is possible only under British leadership. Hitherto the British have been uncertain of the direction in which they would cast their destinies. A commonwealth customs union? Impossible because of the tightened link that binds Canada with the United States. Anglo-American union? A dream as yet, though perhaps realizable one of these days with what Clarence Streit calls the Federal Union of the Free.

The Soviet Union's refusal to make peace is inexorably pushing the free world into this grand nexus. America with Canada, North America with the English-speaking peoples, the whole linked with like-minded folk everywhere—the nexus is inevitable as mankind gets the present-day measure of the problem of survival in a world of aggression and anarchy. In Freedom and Union Mr. Streit outlines a global adaptation of the debt assumption plan whereby Alexander Hamilton helped to insure our Federal Union. It is worth pondering. There is what Lecky called a "predisposition in society" nowadays to consider ideas which were not conceivable, no matter how cogently presented, in less dangerous days. The hope is that men's minds will develop at not too slow a rate in actualizing the truth that community has become the salvation of free peoples, and seek to make it visible.

The grossest illusion is to imagine that a consolidated western Europe—what Leon Blum calls the "third force"—is all that is necessary to enable us to sit back on our American shores assured of security. In the world of today a Europa of the envisaged dimensions is the air age's equivalent of the Little Entente after the first World War. How brittle did this turn out to be when the guns went off! No, western Europe within the scope of the Marshall Plan would fall like a pack of cards as soon as Cossack Europe started to move. Let us make no mistake about that. The United States must get it into its head that it is part of Europe and every other continent now that frontiers have vanished. Having realized this inescapable relation, the part of wisdom is to act upon it, and show in word and deed that this Nation is one with an established Europa.

What must be done immediately is to back the kind of integration that Mr. Bevin will now seek to promote. No time should be lost. It was dismaying to read, after the tocsin had been sounded last June 5 by Secretary Marshall himself, that Mr. Lovett had put on the brake when a second meeting of the Sixteen Nations had been scheduled. Our policy should be to spur such a get-together. The world cannot stand still while Congress is debating—nor should we, Canute-like, command history in Europe to mark time for the same reason. As Low, in a brilliant cartoon, put it, Europe must go ahead to demolish sovereignty "Prince (Marshall) or no Prince." The powerful encouragement of the United States through help and guarantees and example will speed the union that Mr. Bevin has suggested.

Yes, and example. Our wisest course at the same time that we are encouraging a Europa is to seek some sort of union with Canada. The strategic argument alone is compelling. In the air age this is all-important, but some sort of union is necessary for reasons other than purely strategic ones. Canada has become an ally in our economic development if for no other reason than that she has the raw material—in iron ore, especially—for our intensely developed industrial economy. The disappearing Mesabi is making our industrial statesmanship, if not our poltical statesmanship, look to the Dominion as an economic partner.

Interdependence worked out in political and economic relation with all like-minded peoples has become the last chance of our civilization. The facts admit of no argument. It is not enough to throw up a third force as a sort of Atlantic Maginot Line between America and Russia. That merely gains time. A preventive war is equally out of the question, for, even if this were possible, and even if the United States won, there would simply be ashes for reconstruction, and no vitality left to do it. Statesmanship requires that we constantly and positively search for unity so intensive and so extensive that the odds of a Russian gamble in conquest would appear to the doctrinaire Kremlin to be too wide for comfort. That would be the most persuasive showdown with Moscow that Mr. Churchill, supporting the Bevin speech, calls for. The Bevin initiative, as important in its way as Mr. Marshall's, should excite the same kind of response in America as Mr. Marshall's did in Europe.

NEIGHBORS

The birds come down in winter from the wood
For seed and suet to the window-box:
The wild and songless; the loud bluejay's brood;
Snowbird and chickadee and larks in flocks.

The deer sometimes come stepping through the snow,
Wary and watchful, feeding in our meadow:
The proud high-antlered stag, the gentle doe,
Mottled with sun, moon-dappled in grey shadow.

Winter makes friends when hunger tempers fear!
Blest be the winter, blest be the chill night,
Since in their need, the forest folk draw near.
The world is one, when all the world is white!

"Inflation Money"

One of our Hartford papers recently quoted a December 27, editorial from your paper arguing that our corporations, through paying extra year end dividends, were contributing to the inflationary spiral.

No doubt there is a minor measure of logic in this argument, because every additional dollar put in circulation contributes to the demand for goods, whether this be through increased wages or increased income. But I submit the fact that as the purchasing power of our dollar is around only 60 per cent of what it used to be the value of dividends, even with recent "extras" is even now far less than it used to be.

The vast majority of stockholders in corporations are people of small means who, mostly through thrift and past self-denial, have tried to build up small funds for protection against illness, old age and contingencies. The small stockholder today finds what he has saved worth, in income production and purchasing power only six tenths what it used to be, before deducting the anywhere up to 25 per cent he has to take out for income taxes. If dividends were what they used to be then they should be ten sixths, at least, of the former amount, in dollars.

After all, it is the thousands of small stockholders who make large corporations possible and it is large corporations that, for the most part, afford the small investor a chance to participate in the progress of the country's industries. Is his status not entitled to some serious and sincere thought?

Unfavorable Contrast

Two items in The ashington Post of January 19 combine to give an honestly patriotic citizen pause. One is your editorial, "Canada's Way," and the other a news dispatch from Moscow, dated there the 18th, reporting results achieved in the first two years of the Soviets' Five Year Plan.

No matter by what label it is tagged, a government should be judged by the results it achieves in carrying out the principles of its foundation and its announced objectives. Common honesty, plain fairness in thinking, must on these lines reach a comparative estimate unfavorable to the Government of these United States.

In the growing hubbub of American partisan politics, while the spiral of inflation continues to mount unchecked to the prodigious profit of the profiteers, Canada acts "to protect her citizens from the impact of increases in essential foods." At Ottawa no intrenched lobbyists of special interests can defeat or sidetrack measures in the interest of the people for whom, as well as by and of whom, the government of Canada is conducted.

Across the Atlantic, meantime, a nation, which lost seven million of its young men in the war and suffered material losses immeasurably greater than those confronting any other people except those of Germany and Japan, only two years after the end of that devastation reaches in the fourth quarter of 1947 an industrial output (quoting from the Moscow dispatch) "equal to the average quarterly level of the prewar year of 1940." And, the dispatch adds: "The gross output increased by 22 per cent over that of 1946."

At the same time, grain production, topping that of 1946 by 56 per cent, reached prewar levels. And—here is the most impressive contrast—while thousands of GIs, who have done no more than their simple duty as citizens of a nation at war, continue their free rides on a politically profligate Government, while landlords drive, through their real estate lobbies, for ever higher rents, and while the clamor still goes up from all quarters of the country for housing—quoting your Moscow dispatch, "State and local Soviet institutions built or restored about nine million square meters of living floor space and individual citizens, using savings earned by their own labor, built additional houses with four million square meters of floor space."

There is some food for thought in these two items.

White House Balcony

Whoever as an official in a democratic country undertakes to act as if public property were his own, falls from grace, prestige, and reputation of adherence to principles of democracy. Not even a President of the United States is exempt from operation of law. The more respect for and adherence to law they show, the greater their all-time reputation as statesmen.

For anyone familiar with even customary practice in real estate operations, it is well known that no tenant (even long-time) ever makes changes, even if some might call them "improvements" without the consent of the landlord, and especially not at the landlord's expense! For a President to assume that he is exempt from practice, custom and laws that bind all in a democracy adds nothing to his stature. For that kind of "change" to be made at landlord's expense, just ahead of possibly vacating the premises, might even be classed as egotism or arrogance.

Fighting The Firemen

"Fighting the Firemen" would be the realistic title for a pictu now being forced upon the minds of millions of apprehensive Americans and upon the fears of many more millions of a continent already scorched and made sodden with human blood. For they are remembering that when the Mad Maniac of Munich began blowing upon the coals of religion and racial hate, no fireman responded to the alarm. They have not forgotten that while firemen sang "Peace in Our Time" the flame was mounting that burned the soul of a nation and lit conflagration over all nations.

And they know that today, kindled basically upon an identical altar, though camouflaged as waves of "democratic freedom," the flames of Moscow are dropping their firebrands upon the doorstep of every home of every nation where God is honored and the rule of law protects human rights.

That is why the eyes of all men who love liberty above life and value peace above price are turned toward the strongest volunteer fire-fighting force in all the world—the American people.

And that is why Molotov applauds those who fight the firemen under the mask of "national economy." For, officered by the Tafts and the Longhorn O'Daniels, the Tabers and the Marcantonios, the Hoffmans and the Knutsons, they drag forth their garden-size pipe line and sink their hatchets into Fire Chief Marshall's hose as he and his nozzlemen, Truman, Vandenberg and Connally, struggle toward the flames, while Cheer Leader Wallace, leering at Nozzleman Truman, directs the Vishinsky band in "Peace, Peace, Wonderful Peace."

Community Chest Administration

I am replying to the letter published in your paper on January 17, signed "Former Reporter," and also refer to the far-less-specific letter signed, "M. Marchand Brown."

The Community Chest Federation is a humanitarian institution, managed by human, fallible individuals. However, it has not made the mistakes attributed to it by "Former Reporter."

For instance, he states that "Character-building" agencies received the "greater portion of Chest funds." The facts are that of the moneys allocated to the member agencies of the six Community Chests of the Community Chest Federation for 1947, 30.08 per cent was allocated to the character-building agencies, 67.43 per cent to relief and services for the distressed, the sick, and the helpless and 2.49 per cent to miscellaneous services.

"Former Reporter" implies, out of his experience in another city, that the Community Chest Federation uses the relief agencies to "front" for the others. The facts are that during 1947, 1830 stories on agency services were devoted to character-building agencies and 365 stories to the agencies providing relief and services to the distressed, the sick and the helpless. Of these, during the recent campaign period, 270 stories were devoted to character-building agencies and 105 to the relief, family welfare and health agencies.

At no time was emphasis placed upon 'relief" as the only basis for giving. In fact, every effort was made to demonstrate the value of preventive services in all fields.

"Former Reporter" speaks, too, of learning that "designating or allocating a contribution was a great, great joke." It is no joke with the Community Chest Federation. Every dollar designated to any agency gets to that agency, less the percentage for headquarters expenses and shrinkage, since every contribution must bear its proper part of such expenses and shrinkage.

It is true that on the average 15 per cent of all contributed money is designated to specific agencies. It is the contributors who determine that percentage, and if the contributors designate to any agency 100 per cent of its precampaign budget as approvec by the budget committee, it will get that 100 per cent (except as noted above), regardless of the degree of success of the campaign. Contributors have as much right not to designate their contributions as others have to designate. Contributions, therefore, are distributed in two ways. First, directly to agencies by the contributors through their designation; second, by the budget committee in its discretion from the funds of contributors who prefer not to designate.

"Former Reporter" also states that "he discovered out of 10 years' experience as a newspaperman that no 'character-building' agencies ever more than flutter their wings over anybody who really needed their help, but could not afford it." In Washington he will find eight settlement houses, two boys' clubs, many Scout and Campfire groups, neighborhood YW's and YM's located in areas of obviously low-income people.

"Former Reporter" would like to see printed the allocations to the agencies in the Washington Chest. He will find these allocations printed in the Washington newspapers under date of December 31, 1947. As soon as certified public accountants furnish the 1947 audits of the books of all the agencies of the six Community Chests of the Community Chest Federation, copies of the reports of receipts and expenditures of these agencies and Chests will be made available to the public.

Some of the comments made by M. Marchand Brown are so general as to be difficult to answer. She indicates that "supervision should be maintained over the use of Chest donations" to adequately correct the inclusion of "needless and extravagant activities" and "indifference to really beneficial results."

The facts are that careful supervision is maintained, as demonstrated in the series of steps through which an agency's budget must go from the time it is submitted to the time its last money is spent. These steps are: First, careful review of any single agency's budget by its own board of directors (all reputable volunteers); second, presentation of that budget to its Community Chest budget committee (also well-known and reputable volunteers), of which the agency is a member; third, presentation by each Community Chest of its member agencies' budgets to the Community Chest Federation budget committee (again composed of reputable volunteers); fourth, a report of receipts and expenditures by each agency to the budget committee of each Community Chest, month by month, before their next monthly allocation of funds is sent to it. Miss Brown might agree that this system is one that provides proper "supervision of the use of donations," since the budget committee of each Community Chest, month by month, must also review the efficacy of services.

Top Tenth's Spending

By Malvina Lindsay

Bridling the Boom

THOUGH SHE may not guess it, Mrs. A, comfortable housewife in a comfortable home, where income is above $5000, has become the woman of the hour. She has power now through her pocketbook to help materially in halting the price spiral. Later, with the same pocketbook power operated in reverse, she can help prevent a bust.

Sharing her call to economic patriotism are most members of the top one tenth, those who belong to the 4,600,000 families reported by the Federal Reserve Board as receiving annual income from $5000 up. This group gets one third of total national income, holds 40 per cent of savings.

Many single men and women with incomes above $2500 also share this power to help stabilize the economy. It isn't, of course, the whole answer to inflation or depression, but some economists believe it could do a lot.

It's no use, they say, to call for less spending from lower income groups who must put out every cent they get in order to live. Nor can many veterans, with their new responsibilities, be expected to curtail financially. And who is to call a halt on those families whose urgent needs piled up in the depression and who now at last are supplying them? Much is made of the fact that the farm woman is spending as much for clothes as her city sister. But it must be remembered that generally she had a near-empty clothes closet.

BUT ON those women and men who have well-stocked wardrobes, motor cars that will run, furniture and appliances that will do, rests the economic noblesse oblige of this era, now so seriously threatened with boom and bust disaster. Those willing to get by now with a minimum of buying will make things a little easier in the market for those who have to buy.

Later, should prices and employment start dropping alarmingly, these volunteer stabilizers would face an equal obligation to spend. This spending would be to their own profit—it would bring them more for their money, and it would save the Government from having to spend through the medium of their taxes.

The possibilities in such an attack on boom and bust have led one student of the problem, consulting engineer and author, David Cushman Coyle, to start a one-man crusade among national women's groups to induce them to promote regulated spending. Since women possess the bulk of purchasing power, Mr. Coyle believes they could wield much influence on prices by planned stabilized spending. Such action might become an historic extension from the political to the economic field of the voluntary workings of democracy.

ALSO pointing the finger of responsibility at the upper one tenth is the Food and Nutrition Board of the National Research Council. It says consumers whose diets are well above adequacy should be the chief ones to substitute in market and restaurant abundant foods for those critically scarce.

Americans with money have been showing considerable moderation in spending. If they hadn't, the top would have blown off prices long ago. On the whole, they have behaved more sensibly than in other booms. Now they are showing consumer resistance to luxury goods. If this is extended to goods they will need eventually, but can forego now, many prices out of line might begin to adjust.

One thing that helped Britain escape the weakening from black markets and communism, which dealt such blows to France, Italy and especially Greece, was the willingness of its more fortunate citizens to accept austerity. The strong hereditary sense of noblesse oblige among most Britishers with advantages of birth or fortune made possible leadership at the top in plain living and shabby dressing. But ostentatious luxury and black marketeering in some countries boosted inflation, gave ammunition to extremists.

If accepting shabbiness is part of a nation's strength, as has been said of Britain, the acceptance of delayed spending would seem to be asking little enough of Americans who don't want to see their nation weakened before the world at this critical moment.

Washington Calling

Organizing The Eisenhower Draft

ON THE EVE of this curious presidential race, one thing is almost painfully obvious. The degree of enthusiasm for any of the candidates who have a chance of nomination and election must be measured with instruments sensitive enough to catch the slightest whisper of sound.

Childs

There is one exception—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower. In the public opinion polls, in ordinary talk, in every way, the hopes of a large number of Americans center on the figure of the general. It is especially true of those who consider themselves independent in politics or who are only loosely attached to one or the other of the two major parties.

Shortly, General Ike is going on the first vacation that he has had in many years. He will take two months of long-deferred leave and try to get away from all problems, personal and public. The general will be on inactive duty status during his vacation.

For the first time in seven years he will take off his uniform and put on civilian clothes. That is a symbolic change charged with great meaning to Eisenhower, the soldier. He has a deep conviction that a man in uniform should not talk politics, either directly or indirectly.

WHILE MAKING it plain that he was not speaking for the general and had no pipeline to his private intentions, Publisher Roy Roberts of the Kansas City Star believed he would sooner or later go the whole way and repeat, perhaps even word for word, the formula used by General Sherman when an attempt was made to draft him as a presidential candidate. Eisenhower's statement of yesterday does not do that. As though deliberately, it leaves the way open for a draft at the Republican convention in Philadelphia.

Others amongfi Eisenhower's friends believed he would not go quite so far. They were confident he would stop short of saying he would refuse to run if drafted as Sherman had said. That is just what he has now done. He is still eligible for the nomination.

In the firm belief that he will not remove himself finally and absolutely from consideration, a number of ardent amateurs are going ahead with a national Eisenhower-for-President organization. They are looking for State chairmen in all States. Men and women with headline names are being asked to serve on the national committee.

One of the few professionals active in the Eisenhower movement is Senator Charles W. Tobey of New Hampshire. Tobey, who says he has only met the general once casually at a White House reception, overflows in his enthusiasm for Ike.

Tobey was largely responsible for entering the general's name in the New Hampshire primary to be held on March 9. Some among Eisenhower's admirers believe this move was mistaken, since it added to the general's embarrassment and may have helped to force a no-draft statement.

BUT TOBEY radiates confidence. He points to the impressive list of Eisenhower backers in New Hampshire and predicts the general will run away with the preferential primary election. After a conference the other day with ardent amateurs from New York, Tobey agreed to take a prominent part in helping to shape the Eisenhower boom.

The Eisenhower promoters have an answer for those who want to know if they have any idea of their hero's views on the great topics of the day. They whip out a seven-page mimeographed document containing excerpts from Eisenhower's speeches and statements on labor, education, economy, disarmament, and so on. These remarks taken out of context and setting have a pretty platitudinous sound.

Tobey knows, of course, that a great deal of organization will be necessary if there is to be an impressive "spontaneous" demand for Eisenhower at the Republican convention in Philadelphia. The party leaders, who held a national meeting here the other day, take a dim view of the Eisenhower candidacy. They believe they can win with one of their own, perhaps even with Senator Robert A. Taft in spite of his poor showing in the polls.

It will certainly be a duller contest if later on when he is in civilian clothes Eisenhower does unequivocally take himself out of the race. In at least one quarter the news would be a ray of sunshine. That is at Democratic headquarters, where they realize that Eisenhower would be far and away the most formidable man to oppose President Truman.

Employment Service

A Communication

I HAVE READ with amazement the series of articles by Mrs. Agnes E. Meyer concerning the return of the farm labor program to the United States Employment Service. I am not so much amazed at her extravagant praise of the Extension Service; everyone acquainted with its work agrees that it did a fine job on the farm placement program assigned to it. Rather I am amazed at the nature of her attack upon the United States Employment Service.

There is much truth in what Mrs. Meyer says about the failure of the United States Employment Service to measure up to the requirements of such a service. But Mrs. Meyer also has failed in her analysis of the causes. And she maligns a group of civil servants, most of whom, to my personal knowledge, have never, in a brief, tempestuous career, become "habituated to the comfortable jog trot of an eight-hour day."

The Employment Service was born in emergency—the emergency of a Nation-wide depression. The necessity of meeting the heavy demands of a wartime manpower program was only one in a long series of emergencies which taxed its personnel beyond their reasonable capacity. Its failures have been due in no small measure to the limitations of human effort. And its substantial successes are a tribute to the loyalty and perseverance of its staff.

The primary obstacles have been the jurisdictional fights such as this in which Mrs. Meyer has, perhaps unwittingly, become entangled. Some have been Federal; some Federal-State. The local employment offices, where staffs desired nothing else as much as an opportunity to do a job, were the basis for these controversies.

FOLLOWING the establishment of unemployment compensation as a result of the Social Security Act of 1935, the Employment Service passed through the first period of disruption. Part of this stress and strain was Federal, as reflected in the ultimate transfer of the United States Employment Service from the Department of Labor to the Social Security Board in 1939. Part was State, as new State agencies took over the operation of State employment services. The net effect in both cases was the "integration" of employment service and unemployment compensation activities. Integration for the employment service at the Federal level and in many States meant subordination. In both Federal and State agencies some of the employment service people with the greatest vision and capacity were "liquidated."

As a tight labor market resulted from the manpower requirements of defense production, the Employment Service created new programs to meet recruitment and training problems aggravated by long years of depression and underemployment. One of the chief drawbacks during this period was an inability to view local needs in relation to the total needs of national defense. The quick response to Nation-wide requirements was lacking. The solution adopted, rightly or wrongly, was the nationalization of the employment service under the Social Security Board on January 1, 1942.

The Sar Manpower Commission was established in April, 1942, and claimed the employment service to carry out its field program. Again the employment service was transferred to new leadership and direction—leadership which not only was largely unfamiliar but in some cases actually antagonistic to its fundamental program. One of the top officials who directed its operation during this period has since gone on record that there is no place for a public employment service in this country.

AND WHAT of the people in local offices who were transferred to WMC? In The United States at War, prepared by the War Records Section of the Bureau of the Budget, we find this:

"The State unemployment compensation directors had long suspected the Social Security Board of intent to federalize both employment service and unemployment compensation operations, and were determined to prevent it from retaining control of the State employment services after the war. When the board came to Congress for an appropriation for employment service operations during the fiscal year 1943, the State directors succeeded in writing into the bill a specific statement that the State services must be returned after the war, and a further provision that the salaries of employment service workers could not be raised above the level prevailing for State employes in the respective States. Employment service workers were thus materially worse off as a result of federalization. They were now subject to the 48-hour Federal workweek and a 5 per cent retirement deduction, while their basic salaries remained unchanged."

Naturally many of the best staff members took other jobs. But many of them stuck to their jobs throughout the war. Their "eight-hour" days quite often were 10 or 12 or more, without overtime pay, and with basic pay rates frozen at prewar levels. Time clocks were forgotten in their attempts to find ways and means to staff the greatest war production the world ever saw—and to staff it from a free labor market subject only to voluntary controls. The United States is the only major power that went through the war without national service legislation requiring private citizens to serve wherever they were most needed in a wartime economy.

HOW did the local offices meet their war job? Did they double or triple their staffs along with double or triple load? Again let me quote from The United States at War:

"This service . . . had in June, 1940, some 1500 full-time and 3100 part-time offices with more than 18,000 employes. Neither the number of offices nor the number of employes increased appreciably during the defense and war years. The placement work performed by the service, however, increased greatly. Placements rose from about 4½ million in the fiscal year 1940 to more than eight million in the fiscal year 1942. The service also gave increased attention to developing advance estimates of labor demand and supplies in important industrial areas, and to improving its established procedures for meeting labor shortages in one area by recruiting workers from other areas."

These same offices also administered the voluntary controls established by the War Manpower Commission. The job was done by cutting corners, by "streamlining," by working until the job was done without regard to time. One thing which helped make it possible was the wartime transfer of the farm labor program to the Department of Agriculture. However, this transfer also created problems which were never solved; throughout the war farm groups opposed the use of farm labor in industry during the off season of farm employment for fear they would not get them back when they were needed.

Could the employment service job have been done better? Obviously. But I doubt that any group of people, however "humanitarian and practical," could have done it much better under the circumstances.

AFTER THE war the problems continued. In October, 1945, the President transferred the USES to the Department of Labor. In November, 1946, the local employment offices were transferred back to State operations. In 1947, largely through the influence of State agencies, the appropriation for the national office of the USES was cut to a fraction of that needed to carry out the responsibilities assigned to it by Congress under the Wagner-Peyser Act; the President's reorganization bill transferring the USES permanently to the Department of Labor was defeated. The President has now introduced another reorganization bill in this Congress transferring both USES and unemployment compensation to the Department of Labor.

The insecurity and uncertainty continue. The picture of all-powerful bureaucracy as painted by Mrs. Meyer is totally unrelated to fact.

Perhaps the problem is not so much one of deciding who should run the employment service as one of letting somebody run it—and run it for longer than the time it takes to begin to understand its program. Instead of constantly shifting from one leadership to another and passing through one reorganization after another, the employment service staff could then begin to give the Nation a service commensurate with the need.

In the labor market in this country there is no sharp break between farm labor and industrial labor. Many people are farm workers at one season and industrial workers at another. Splitting the basic program is not the answer for any group. And patchwork solution such as that proposed by Mrs. Meyer merely postpone the day when the Nation's economy will be served by the kind of employment service it needs. Unfortunately, such superficial accounts as hers also make the job more difficult and less satisfying for those employment service people who still, in spite of all, are trying to get a job done.

EVERY USER MUST SAVE FUEL OIL NOW!

If Everyone Saves a Little
There'll Be Enough for All!

The demand for fuel oil today is greater than ever before in the history of our nation. It is even greater than during peak war years.

The petroleum industry is producing more oil than ever before, yet the supply will not be sufficient this winter unless every user begins immediately to reduce his consumption. Don't wait until tomorrow . . . begin today . . . cut your use of fuel oil by 15 per cent.

And remember, when you save fuel oil, you save money for yourself and make it possible for your neighbor to have heat, too. If everyone saves a little, there'll be enough for all.

Here are three easy ways to save fuel oil, without any great discomfort to your family:

1. Keep temperature as low as possible consistent with health in the daytime. Unless there are older persons or young children in your home, do not set thermostat above 68 degrees. Turn the thermostat to 60 or lower at night, or whenever you are away from home.

2. Close closet doors and doors leading to attic. Close rooms not in use. Draw shades at night if you do not have storm windows. Close bedroom doors at night.

3. Install storm windows and insulate your home to keep heat IN . . . cold OUT.

GSI Can Bargain Legally, Solicitor Rules

Communist pledges required for certification by the NLRB. The union has declared that the firm has a legal right and obligation to bargain with it since it represents a majority of the workers and that the affidavits issue is a "smoke-screen" laid to cover "union-busting" intentions.

In the statement, Tyson traced the development of a national policy on collective bargaining from 1842 and said the encouragement of voluntary negotiations was "given specific statutory recognition by Congress in the Norris-LaGuardia Act, the Wagner Act and the Labor-Management Relations Act of 1947 (Taft-Hartley Act)."

The attorney pointed out that Section 204 of the Taft-Hartley Act "made a duty for employers and employes to exert every reasonable effort to make and maintain agreements concerning rates of pay, hours and working conditions.'"

He said the fact that the Taft-Hartley measure incorporated provisions for filing suits by unions or employers in Federal District Courts without regard to compliance with the affidavits sections was an indication that the act did not intend to disqualify a noncomplying union from collective bargaining with an employer.

Tyson also declared that the NLRB's dismissal of a petition by GSI for a representative election "does not bar the employer from continuing to bargain with a union of his employes."

In other developments on the strike front:

1. The CIO Executive Committee voted "full support" for the striking workers and asked President Harry S. Truman to call an immediate collective bargaining conference.

2. Representatives Clare Hoffman (R., Mich.) said union officials have a "standing invitation" to tell their side of the dispute before his House Labor Committee subcommittee. Union officials said they had not been asked to appear.

3. Palmer will discuss the strike issues on radio station KQQW today at 1 p. m. GSI officials declined to appear on the program, station officials said.

The CIO committee also asked the Federal Government "to discontinue the use of Federal police and building guards in assisting and proecting strike-breakers, and in attacking union members."

Letters Signed 'Esther' Aid Laughlin's Case

a nurse and stayed there while Mrs. Hobbs visited Dr. Peckham.)

The May 16 letter read: "Dear Jim: I think you know I always wanted to be fair with you and I want to thank you for all you have done for me. You have always been kind. I want to say that you are not responsible for me being "pregnent" and that you had nothing to do with the abortion. I can never tell you how sorry I am that I didn't take your advice and let the baby be born. I know I will always be sorry for this. Good-by and good luck, Esther."

Mrs. Hobbs, the former Miss Esther Pickard, had married William Gibbs Hobbs on May 2.

Earlier in the trial Mrs. Hobbs testified that the signature on the March 20 letter was her own but she denied typing it. As to the signature on the other letter she said she didn't know if it was her's or not.

A defense witness, Mrs. Mary Thompson, 1744 Q st., nw., a former landlady of Mrs. Hobbs, was held in $100 bond by Laws on contempt charges for failing to identify herself to Deputy Marshal Alexander O'Hare Thursday when he sought to serve a subpena on her.

With Laughlin's alibis established for the dates mentioned by Government witnesses, Peckham's attorneys, H. Mason Welch and Dorsey K. Offutt, opened up along the same lines.

Russell John Stamp, 1239 C st., se., a Southern Dairies employe, testified he was in Dr. Peckham's office at 428 5th st., se., last March 19 from about 7 p. m. until 7:45 p. m.

March 19 was the date given by some Government witnesses as the time Mrs. Hobbs visited Dr. Peckham's for an attempted abortion. On this date also, a Hubert Stottlemyer, acting as go-between, was supposed to have handed Dr. Peckham an envelope, which the Government claims contained money.

Stamp declared he saw no one resembling descrpitions of either Mrs. Hobbs or Stottlemyer during that time.

Mrs. Thelma White, 722 15th st. se., testified she was in Dr. Peckham's office as a patient on March 19 from about 7:15 p. m. until about 8:50 p. m.

She also asserted she saw no one there resembling either Stottlemyer or Mrs. Hobbs.

She displayed a diary which included an account of her visit. The notation was a complete one including information that the waiting room was crowded, that a man in a rocking chair gave his seat to a woman and that Mrs. White was the last to leave the office shortly before 9 p. m.

Mrs. White also said she visited Dr. Peckham again on March 21 and left about 8:15 p. m.

Charles B. Quade, 726 15th st. se., testified that on March 19 he was treated by Dr. Peckham at his home. He said the doctor arrived at about 9 p. m. and stayed half hour. He said Peckham again visited him on March 22 in the morning.

Miss Veronica Fischetti of Arlington, Va., a Dumont Television employe, said that on March 20, Peckham called for her at her home at about 7 p. m. and that they went to the Metropolitan Theater.

She said they saw "The Angel and the Badman," left the theater about 9:45 and returned to her home about 11:30 p. m. after visiting a restaurant.

She said she and the physician went to the "Canoe Club" March 22 and stayed from 9 p. m. until 1:30 a. m.

Earlier John Marcon, assistant manager of the Metropolitan, testified records showed that "The Angel and the Badman" played at the theater on the date mentioned.

Under cross-examination by Prosecutor Charles B. Murray, the witness said she had often attended movies with Peckham.

She was unable to give dates, times, or names of other films.

The trial will be resumed Monday.

Murphy Backs Transfer Plan

sistant Corporation Counsel Daniel B. Maher:

"There isn't any unrest about the transfer plan. There is some uncertainty among a few men—you've got them all here . . . about 20."

While Capt. Joseph W. Conroy, Murphy's chief accuser, has said he brought a condition of confusion and uncertainty through wholesale personnel transfers, Murphy said:

"I think the state of mind has been exaggerated . . . I can parade 800 firemen down here to tell you that you've been misled."

Prosecution witnesses, declaring there was demoralization, have disagreed on whether there was also inefficiency as charged.

Murphy supporters have challenged the reported vote last June of 377 to 10 by the local fire fighters' union in support of Conroy's accusations. Conroy heads the local, which claims membership of nearly 700 of the 900-odd members of the Fire Department.

The key point of yesterday's proceedings, Canfield's question on a possible "peace pact," came when Murphy, giving a point-by-point explanation of transfers on which he was being questioned by Maher, stated:

"The plan as now operating is not a perfect plan . . . There are 'bugs' in this rotation system. We don't have it set up right, and we're trying to do it in the face of opposition."

Could you and your chiefs come up with a "definite system," so that "some of this unfortunate and regretable disturbance could be cleared up?" asked Canfield.

"Not altogether," answered Murphy, who went on to say that some of the chiefs testified they did not believe in a rotation system."

Could Work Out System

However, when Canfield later asked if Murphy believed he could sit down with his subordinates and attempt to work out such a program, the fire chief replied in the affirmative.

Earlier, Murphy declared that the Fire Department always had a "transfer system," in that entire companies were transferred from one section of the city to another. In addition, he said, 50 to 60 firemen are "transferred" around the city each day, to fill vacancies.

Murphy's unusual memory amazed observers at the trial. At times he quoted exact dates of events 15 or 20 years ago.

The fire chief said he discussed his plan, "with my deputies, and I brought it up at one chief's meeting." He also said he visited each battalion to select men for transfers, and found the men interested" only in their company or battalion, not the Fire Department as a whole."

During yesterday's hearing, Prosecutor Maher corrected a statement he had made the day before in which he stated he had since found "no basis in fact" for an allegation that four bottles of whisky were taken from a drug store during a fire last February, and consumed.

Rogers, vice president in charge of sales and personnel for Thompson's Dairy, will speak for management, and James J. O'Conner, president of Columbia No. 1, International Typographical Union, AFL, for labor.

Area Churches Slate Special Observances

Several Arlington, Alexandria, Montgomery and Prince Georges County churches have arranged special services for tomorrow.

The budding Fair-Park Baptist Church at 3 p. m. will break ground for a new church at Seminary rd. and Crestwood dr., Alexandria.

Principal speaker will be the Rev. J. Paul Gulley, pastor of Del Ray Baptist Church, Alexandria, and moderator of the Potomac Baptist Association. The Fair-Park congregation was organized July 29, 1946, as the Calvary Baptist Church, but changed its name December 28, 1947. Dr. E. H. Potts, the present pastor, came to Fairlington and Parkfairfax May 1, 1946, to organize a congregation, which has been meeting in the Fairlington School Building.

Faith Lutheran Church, Lee Boulevard and Jackson st., Arlington, will mark its fifteenth birthday. The Rev. Robert W. Long, pastor, will speak at 8:30 a. m. and 11 a. m. on "Your Eyes Have Seen." Dr. Walter E. Schuette, president of the American Lutheran Church's Eastern District, will preach at 11 a. m. A "Reception of the Years" is set for January 29 at 8 p. m., when the honored guests will be Dr. and Mrs. Gerhard E. Lenski of Grace Lutheran Church, Washington, D. C.

The Rockville Christian Church at 11 a. m. will launch a financial drive to erect an educational unit and renovate present facilities. The Rev. J. Virgil Lilly is pastor. The Disciples of Christ Church Board of Extension prepared plans for the new unit. Brawner Z. Harding is chairman of the Rockville Church's planning and building committee.

The Landover Hills (Md.) Baptist Church, 6914 Varnum st., will sponsor a week of Bible studies, tomorrow through January 30, daily from 7:30 p. m. to 9 p. m. The Rev. Arthur G. Slaght of the South Baltimore Bible Church will lead the discussions. The Rev. Merle W. E. Shade is pastor.

Adventists to Hear Rep. Bloom Today

Representative Sol Bloom (D., N. Y.), will speak at the Ephesus Seventh-Day Adventist Church today at 11 a. m. on "The Effect of the Calendar Revision on Sabbath-Keeping People."

There is a bill before Congress—H.R. 1345—that would put a blank-day world calendar into effect January 1, 1950. This bill is being vigorously opposed by religious organizations because of their fixed sacred days.

Louis 'Gives Up' Distracting Golf

Chicago, Jan. 23 (AP).—Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis today vowed to spurn what he termed his "distracting" hobby of golf until after he tees off against Jersey Joe Walcott in their expected return match tonight. Left to right: Jack Robbins, forward and captain; Bob Searle, forward, and Harry Woods, guard. It will be Navy's first appearance here in 27 years.

Coolidge, Roosevelt Win; Wilson Defeats Western

Anacostia Bows, 36-33; Riders Nose Tech, 35-33

Whitcomb's 15 Points Feature 46-36 Victory

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Coolidge upset Anacostia, 36-33, and Roosevelt nosed out McKinley Tech, 35-33, in an action-packed interhigh basketball double-header yesterday afternoon before 1088 spectators at the National Guard Armory.

Coolidge's victory in the last minute of the opener was its first in three series games, and boosted the Colts from last place into a tie with Anacostia for sixth.

By outscrapping Tech in the second game, the surprising Rough Riders registered their second straight series win against one loss, and took over third place. Tech's third consecutive setback dropped the Trainers into sole tenancy in the cellar.

Warner Bottled Up

Coolidge's tactics in the first game were clear. The colts were out to beat Anacostia by stopping the league's scoring leader, Wally Warner.

And with Bobby Rohr stationed in front and Bob Langrall in back of Warner, they held the Indians star to 10 points. Meanwhile Coolidge's Tommy Boyle tossed in 14 and Jess Houston added nine.

It was a close game with Anacostia carrying a 27-24 lead going into the last quarter. With a minute to go, Anacostia was still on top, 33-32.

Tech Feeble on Fouls

The Tech Trainers helped beat themselves in the nightcpa by making only nine out of 27 foul shots Little Billy Paguh provided Roosevelt with the winning momentmum, tossing in 14 points.

After trailing throughout the first half, Roosevelt pulled out in front t 24-21 in the third quarter. Tech pulled ahead earl, in the final stanza, 25-24.

But foul shots by Paugh and Paugh and Billy Hibbs put the Riders ahead and though pressed the rest of the way, they stayed ahead. A pot-shot by Paugh with 30 seconds left was the clincher.

Central Leads

At the end of the first half of the second game of an inter-high doubleheader at the Armory, Central led Eastern, 23-13, official attendance was 2645.

Woodrow Wilson handed Western its first Inter-High defeat last night by easily beating the Red Raiders, 46-36, in the first game of a doubleheader at the National Guard Armory.

The Tigers scored their second win in three league games before a crowd of about 2500. Jack Whitcomb paved the way for Wilson as he tossed in 15 points and played an all-around fine game.

Wilson had little trouble moving into a 14-7 lead in the first quarter, and extending it to 24-13 at halftime.

Going into the last period, Wilson's margin was 34-22. Wilson's zone defense befuddled Western and until the last quarter the Raiders had made only five field goals.

Top Scorer's 26.3 Average Overlooked

River Falls, Wisc., Jan. 23 (AP).—Big Nate de Long wasn't listed by the National Collegiate Athletic Bureau today among the leading basketball scorers in the country—but he tops them all.

De Long, sophomore center for River Falls State Teachers College, has scored 316 points on 106 field goals and 104 free throws in 12 games this year for an average of 26.3 a contest.

His high single game total was 42 points on 13 field goals and 16 free throws against Superior (Wisc.) Teachers last week and he's hit 38 points twice earlier this season. His team has seven more games.

The NCAB figures released from New York placed Norman Hankins of Lawrence (Mich.) Tech atop all "major" college scorers with a 23.8 average for 1" games and listed Hankins as the leading individual game scorer with 38 points against Carnegie Tech.

Young Tendler Ballplayer

Philadelphia, Jan. 23 (AP).—Lew Tendler's 19-year-old son, Milt, signed a baseball contract today and his former lightweight boxing contender said the lad was picking the diamond over the ring because "his mother wants him to keep his good looks."

Blond, curly-haired Milt had about the same version:

"My mother can't see fighting—one fighter in the family was enough."

Mom Notwithstanding

Martinette, Wis., Jan. 23 (AP).—Earl (Jug) Girard, triple threat halfback from the University of Wisconsin, declared tonight he would reaffirm his contract with the Green Bay Packers of the National League when he turns 21.

Girard, who had been offered $10,000 by the New York Yankees of the All-America Conference, signed a Packer contract about 10 days ago for a reported $8000.

However, he won't be 21 until Sunday and his mother, Mrs. Ann Girard, has refused to countersign the contract. His father is dead.

He Just Wants to Bet

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 23 (AP).—Aaron Greenfeld of Baltimore asked the Court of Appeals today to order the Maryland Jockey Club to let him watch and bet on the horse races at Pimlico.

Through counsel, Greenfeld said he had been ushered from the Pimlico track on two consecutive days of the 1946 spring racing season.

Employes of the Jockey Club, which operates both Pimlico and Laurel, "refused to give any lawful reason for ejecting him." Attorney William D. McQuaid, asserted.

For the club, William D. MacMillan and Lawrence Perin, argued that as a private corporation it may order anyone from the track "without assigning any reason."

Riggs, Kramer in Suit

Philadelphia, Jan. 23 (AP).—The Philadelphia Inquirer Charities, Inc., today filed suit seeking $25,000 damages from Jack Harris, Chicago promoter, and asking an injunction to restrain pro tennis players Bobby Riggs, Jack Kramer, Dinny Pails and Pancho Segura from playing for anyone else during the one-week period contemplated for the Inquirer's outdoor tennis tournament next fall.

The suit claims that Riggs, pro tennis king, has been induced by the other four defendants to breach a contract with the Inquirer charities to play here next spring.

Terps Hold Grid Banquet Tonight

Maryland will hold its annual football banquet at the Wardman-Park Hotel tonight at 6:30 o'clock.

Dr. H. C. Byrd, university president, will be principal speaker with Jim Tatum, head football coach, as master of ceremonies. Letter winners will also be announced at the affair.

Trio Registers Six-Under-Par In First Round

Phoenix, Ariz., Jan. 23 (AP).—Three of golfdom's classiest performers tonight were tied for the lead at the end of the first round of the $10,000 Phoenix open golf tournament, each recording six-under-par 65's around the Phoenix Country Club course.

Going into the second round of the 72-hole tourney in joint possession of the lead will be Jim Ferrier, San Francisco, Jim Demaret, Ojai, Calif., and Bobby Locke, Johannesburg ,South Africa.

50 Crack Par

Almost one-third of the more than 150 players in the classy field posted scores of par, 36-35—71 or better for the 6,575-yard layout.

Behind the three leaders came Lloyd Mangrum, Chicago, and John Palmer, Baden, N. C., tied at 66, followed by Marty Furgol, Los Angeles, and E. J. (Dutch' Harrison, Little Rock, Ark., with 67.

Ben Hogan, Hershey, Pa., seeking his third straight win in the tournament here, finished the first round bunched with five other players at 68. Hogan's 33-35 round left him even with Sam Snead, Hot Springs, Va., Leland Gibson, Kansas City, Mo.; Lawson Little, Cleveland, Ohio.; Johnny Revolta, Evanston, Ill., and Eric Monti, Santa Monica, Calif.

Demaret's, Putter Hot

Locke, who shared pretournament favorite honors with Hogan, was the first of the trio of leaders to report. He had trouble on two holes, the seventh and the ninth, and blamed his tee shots for the difficulty. He was one over par on each.

Ferrier, the second of the leaders to finish, bogied the par four sixth hole wasting two shots when his drive went into the trees to the rgiht of the fairway.

Demaret had no trouble sinking long putts for most of his birdies and failing to take the lead on the 18th green when his putt for an eagle was inches wide.

Wilfred Wehrle, Reynolds, Ky., and Frank Stranahan, Toledo, both posted scores of 69 to pace the amateur entrants in the events.

Imagine College Playing Football Just for Fun Again

Atlanta, Jan. 23 (AP).—Reactions, mostly favorable, were registered today to the theory advanced by Florida State University that intercollegiate games, including football, might be played for fun.

By conicidence, most likely, the Florida school's proposal came just as the coaches and athletic directors of the Southeastern Conference were wrestling with a problem: how to meet the purity regulations of the new National Collegiate Athletic Association code?

This code wants to keep football's rewards relatively uniform throughout the country.

In brief, deserving athletes can be given scholarships but no grants-in-aid. The latter is an S.E.C. practice of giving the boys a little cash—about $10 a month.

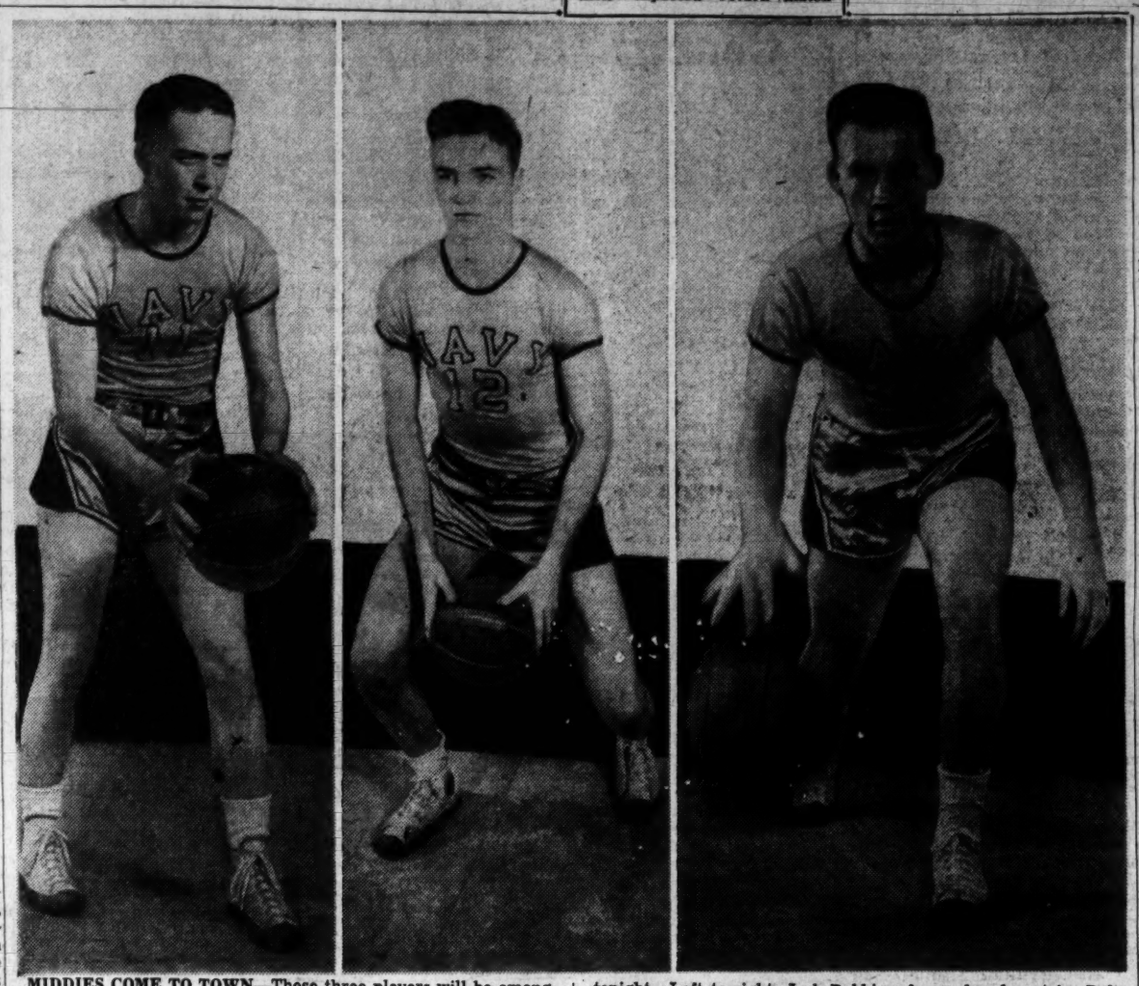
From the case session the coaches brought a four-line statement in longhand which reads:

"The athletic directors and coaches of the Southeastern Conference discussed the N.C.A.A. purity code and our present grants-in-aid policy. We intend to give our president this information for their consideration at the February meeting."

Lujack Expected To Sign Today

Chicago, Jan. 23 (AP).—Apparently maneuvering for position in the battle for pro football publicity, the Chicago Bears today hinted they would sign Quarterback Johnny Lujack of Notre Dame tomorrow and the Chicago Rockets indicated they would assign coast-to-coast Coach Ed McKeever to revive the now defunct club before February 1.

Owner-Coach George Halas of the National Fotball League's mighty Bears announced today that a press conference would be held tomorrow noon, presumably to announce Lujack's signing.



MIDDIES COME TO TOWN—These three players will be among the United States Naval Academy stars who oppose George Washington University in a basketball game at the Armory tonight. Left to right: Jack Robbins, forward and captain; Bob Searle, forward, and Harry Woods, guard. It will be Navy's first appearance here in 27 years.

GU's Mitchell Finishes 3d In Hurdles

Philadelphia, Jan. 23 (AP).—Harrison Dillard of Baldwin-Wallace, America's premier timber-topper, won the 50-yard high hurdles at the fourth annual Philadelphia Inquirer games tonight before an estimated 10,500 in Convention Hall, largest throng ever to see an indoor meet here.

Holder of all the National AAU hurdles titles and one of this country's chief hopes in the coming Olympics, Dillard led all the way but beat Ed Dugger of the Dayton (Ohio) Athletic Club, to the tape by only half a step in 6.4 seconds.

Bill Mitchell of Georgetown, running for the Warinanco Athletic Club at Elizabeth, N. J., was third and his brother, Tom, of Indiana, was last in the four-man final.

National Champion Ed Conwell of the Jersey City Department of Recreation, equalled his own meet record of 5.2 seconds in capturing the 50-yard dash for the second straight year.

Off to his usual bullet-line start, Conwell reached the tape a foot in front of Barney Ewell, National AAU 200-meter champion from Lancaster, Pa., running unattached. Joe Cianciabella of Manhattan College, finished third, with Tom Carey of the New York Pioneer Club, fourth.

O'Hara Slates Armory Tour

Representative Joseph P. O'Hara (R., Minn.) yesterday scheduled a tour of the District National Guard Armory Monday to help Congress decide how non-military activities should be managed.

Representative O'Hara is chairman of the House District committee in charge of legislation to clarify the armory control question.

He said members of the subcommittee will visit the armory with local officials and citizens.

The visit will be followed by an executive meeting in which a compromise solution will be sought.

Meanwhile, District recreation officials proposed that the compromise plan take this line:

The District Commissioners would have charge of the armory, but the Guard's commander could disapprove any action on its operation or rental that interferred with the Guard's use of the armory or with the security of Guard equipment.

George's 10 point performance brought his season's total to 132 for 10 games.

Canadians May Withdraw

London, Jan. 23 (AP).—Threat of a general withdrawal of all hockey teams from the winter Olympics was voiced today by a Canadian spokesman. This followed failure of two United States groups to settle their own quarrel.

George S. Dudley, secretary-manager of the Canadian Hockey Association, delivered his threat at Southampton after arriving on the Queen Mary with Avery Brundage, president of the United States Olympics Committee, and Walter Brown, vice president of the Amateur Hockey Association.

"If there is any interference from the International Olympic Committee," said Dudley, "I am in favor of withdrawing all hockey teams from the winter games and conducting our ouw world championship."

"The Canadian Hockey Association and myself personally are very much opposed to the strict Olympic oath," Dudley declared in reference to the vow of amateurism that all Olympic athletes must sign.

"It was touch and go whether we would go to the Olympics on that account," he continued.

"The situation in Canada is such we can't carry on hockey with only players who conform to it. However, we agreed to compete so we selected a team that could comply to it. It's not the best we have."

Lions Rally To Gain Tie With Barons

A fierce third period rally enabled the Washington Lions to come from behind and tie the Cleveland Barons, 2-2, before 1484 fans last night at Uline Arena.

Trailing 2-0 as the final period began, the Lions sent wave after wave of attacks into Cleveland ice. Johnny Clarr-Harris scored the first Lion goal as he poked in a rebound midway through the period.

Less than two minutes later Capt. Scotty Mair evened the count with a close range smash into the cords after taking a rebound.

With Cleveland goalie Roger Bessette holding the Lions at bay the Barons tallied one goal in each of the first two periods.

The first came midway through the opener when Johnny Holota beat Washington goalie Gordie Bell with a chest high shot at point blank range.

A. B. Demarco got the second Baron tally late in the second session when he poked in a rebound after Bell had stopped two hard shots and was helpless on his back.

Fredericksburg, Va., Jan. 23.—Revenue from night sports events in the James Monroe High School stadium here amounted to $3957 last year, Superintendent Guy H. Brown said today.

Of this amount, $2000 was turned over to the city in payment of the $16,000 loan advanced by the city to install the lights and inclose the stadium last year.

Military District Trims Navy Five

Redskins Sign Another Lineman

The Washington Redskins yesterday signed a football player from Sammy Baugh's home town, Temple, Tex.

The newest Redskin is Floyd (Red) Lawhorn, a 6-foot-2, 205-pound guard, who omade the Little All-America first team in 1945. Last season, Lawhorn made the All-Border conference team and played in the Sun Bowl.

They Just Beat Stags

Providence Has Caps Worried Over Outcome Here Tonight

Most of those who give a hoot about the Washington Caps think the local basketball hotshots are a shoo-in against the Providence Steamrollers at Uline Arena tonight.

Among the exceptions are Cap Coach Red Auerbach and the nine members of his team. To back up his minority report, Auerbach cites these facts:

1. Providence has won only four of its 26 games, but whipped Chicago (Western Division leader), Philadelphia (Eastern Division leader), New York and Washington for its four triumphs.

2. Ernie Calverly and Kenny Sailors have always been troublemakers for the Caps and there's no reason to believe they won't live up to their reputations tonight.

3. Any team that employs a fast break for the full 48 minutes gives Washington a full evening. "And Providence is always running," Auerbach moaned.

The Rollers, now coached by former Celtic Nat Hickey, knocked off the pace-setting Stags in Chicago Thursday night and have a chance to interrupt a four-game Washington streak.

To support their races, Calverly and Sailors, the Rollers have Dino Martin, former Georgetown great; George Nostrand, George Mears and Wyndol Gray.

Providence has split two games with the Caps so far, both in Providence. The usual Cap cast—Feerick, Scolari, Nerlander, McKinney and Mahnken will go most of the way with Hertzberg, Torgoff, Tingle and O'Keefe standing by.

Umpires Getting in Shape for Season As Rival D. C. Factions Feud Between Selves

By Roger Wolbarst
Post Reporter

THERE'S NOTHING surprising about ball players scrapping with umpires, but when the umps go at each other hammer and tongs, that's news.

The rift among the men in blue began more than a year ago when the life members of the D. C. Baseball Umpires Association were forbidden votes by President M. L. Pettit.

Last November, the life members, as well as a few regulars, broke away from the D. C. Association, protesting both the voting regulation and what they claimed was "favoritism in assigning games."

The group then formed its own group, the Washington Baseball Umpires Association.

Jack Mattingly, secretary, says the WBUA will have nothing to do with the DCBUA.

M. L. Pettis, DCBUA president who, the new group claims grabbed all of the higher paying asignments for himself, denied any favoritism whatsoever.

"I divided the games as equally as I could," he said last night. "Every man got a fair deal and I doubt whether there was $15 difference in earnings among the umpires last season."

Asked whether he had anything to do with taking the vote away from the life members, Pettit admitted he did.

"But in doing so, I only followed the constitution of our organization, which reads: only active members can vote or hold office. I claim that since life members pay no dues, don't have to attend meetings and don't offiicate games, they are inactive.

Mattingly says that up to the time Pettit took office, life members could vote and hold office and didn't have to pay dues or attend meetings to hold their franchise.

As a result of the squabble, the D. C. Umpires Association invited the split-off members to attend a meeting of the board of governors last night and explain why they left the association.

But none of the ivited guests showed.

So it looks as though the umpires will be scrapping among themselves for some time. In fact, the umps may not have much fight left when those players start disputing decisions next spring.

Terp, Catholic Boxers Square Off Tonight

Both Teams Revised for 12th Match

University of Maryland's boxers, beaten by West Point in their last outing, try to regain their winning stride tonight when they face Catholic University, 9 o'clock at CU gym.

The Terps also will be trying for their fifth straight win over the Cardinals, who haven't beaten Maryland since 1941. In the 13-year old rivalry, Maryland holds a 5-4 edge, and two meetings resulted in ties.

Maryland, which defeated Michigan State and South Carolina before losing to Army, is favored. The Cards won only two out of seven of their matches against Virginia last week.

The two boys who won for CU against Virginia and are expected to hold their own against the Terps Saturday are 135-pounder Tom Cronin and rookie 165-pounder Bill Maher. The Terps' standouts are Al Salkowski, 125-pounder; Andy Quattrocchi, 130; Barney Lincoln, southpaw lightweight; Ed Rieder, 155, and Ken Malone, light-heavyweight.

Coaches Ed LaFond of Catholic U. and Heinie Miller of Maryland last night announced several changes in their line-ups.

The Terp strategist moved lightheavyweight Ken Malone to the heavyweight spot to replace ailing Monty Whipp and named Walter Lundquist for the 175-pound berth.

He's undecided between Roland Hyde and Barney Lincoln for the 145-pound scrap. If Lincoln gets the call he'll be replaced in the 135-pound division by Al Sirkis, a former Southern Conference champion at that weight.

LaFond expects to use John Doherty in the 130-pound class against Maryland's clever Andy Quattrocchi. Tom Wing will replace Joe Incarnato in the lightweight bracket and Capt. Billy Groves will pinch-hit for Cal Nisson at 145. Groves has been sidelined with an injured hand.

Third man in the ring tonight will be Jim Kelley, well known Cumberland, Md., official.

Mile-of-Dimes Bowling Tonight

One of the biggest benefit bowling events of the season will take place tonight at 7:30 over the Penn Recreation Center alleys when all-star teams from the War Department League and the Navy Department League meet with all proceeds going to the March-of-Dimes Fund in the battle against Infantile Paralysis.

Vice Admiral John D. Price, deputy chief of naval operations, will be the guest of honor, heading the list of high Army and Navy officials who will attend.

The War Department champions, Reproduction, AGO made up of Gene Hargett, Woody Beall, Sam Singer, Bill Hurd and John Copeland, will meet the Navy champions, Hydrographic, composed of Tom Galliher, William Molloy, Mat Farrell and Joe Kuttner. Another match will find the War outfit of Col. R. A. Curtin, Francis Benton, Leonard Mickelson, George Allen and Johnny Parise tackling the Navy team of M. Richard Dunaj, Jim Falck, Harold Higbie, Frank Taylor and William Martin.

Singles and doubles matches will follow.

Hoyas, Texans Play Today; Colonials Face Navy Tonight

The U. S. Naval Academy pays one of its infrequent athletic visits here tonight when the Middies' basketball squad meets George Washington at the Armory.

In an afternoon game there, at 3:30, Georgetown entertains Texas Wesleyan.

George Washington, in an effort to get somebody out to see its team which has been beaten only twice in Southern Conference starts, has arranged a program that includes everything but bingo.

Proceedings get under way at 6:45 o'clock with a prelim between GW's Jayvees and Bullis Prep. From 8 until 8:45, the U. S. Navy Band will offer a concert. Then, during the varsity halftime intermission, 50-pound sluggers from the Police Boys Club will swap punches.

Since the series started in 1907, Navy and GW have met 12 times. Navy won the first nine, the early games by scores like 48-8 and 34-7; then the Colonials asserted themselves and have won the last three.

Last time a major Navy athletic team competed here was in 1934 when the academy's football team played the University of Virginia at Griffith Stadium.

Navy hasn't made a local basketball appearance in the last 27 years.

The game that hurt Navy most was last year's 43-48 triumph. It was the only regularly scheduled contest the Midshipmen dropped.

In that afternoon game, Georgetown meets a wild and wooly Texas Wesleyan team that's on a wild and woolly 10-game Eastern trip. It started last night against Long Island U. and, after today's engagement, the Fort Worth Rams will tackle unbeaten Duquesne and LaSalle among others.

Last year, the Texans won 32 of 36 and boasted the Nation's leading scorer, Clifton McNeely. This season, E. F. (Easy) Parham is filling the high-scoring role and has amassed 210 points as Texas Wesleyan won 10 of its first 13. The former Marine lieutenant was the country's fourth ranking point-maker last season.

The Hoyas figure to be in for a rough afternoon. The visitors rolled over Loyola of New Orleans, 67-40, and that same Loyola beat the Hoyas, 65-52.

House Democrats Open Fight on GOP Tax Reduction Plan

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The House Democratic leadership yesterday opened a party-line attack on the GOP's 6:3 billion dollar Knutson tax reduction bill.

Moving to close party ranks on the tax issue, former Speaker Sam Rayburn (D., Tex.) told reporters:

"We are going to show how nefarious, dishonest and contemptible the character of the Knutson bill is."

Caucus Called

Representative Aime J. Forand (D., R. I.), chairman of the House Democratic caucus, called a meeting of all 187 House Democrats for Wednesday, eve of the House tax debate, to "discuss" the Knutson bill.

Faced with Democratic differences on the President's own "no net cut in revenues" stand, Rayburn concentrated fire on the Republican measure in the strongest language yet used in the tax cut preliminaries.

Estimating the cost of Knutson tax cuts may run as high as 7.2 billion, he said it may "put the country on a deficit financing basis before the next year is out."

"The prudent man will pay his debts while he's got the money," said the former Speaker. "We've got the money now. We can reduce the debt now without hurting anybody very much . . .

"I know this—that with a 258-billion-dollar debt if our economy is shaken very much it is going to squeeze a lot of value out of the dollar . . .

Fears Bond Value Effect

"I don't know what effect it will have on Government bonds. If bond values are shaken—if people get scared about their bonds and stick them through the window and demand their money—I don't know what will happen."

Rayburn said Wednesday's Democratic conference was called to discuss the Knutson bill and nothing else—"what it is, what the implications are and what it will do." He implied Democratic decisions on a motion to recommit the Knutson bill will be deferred to a later date.

Rayburn stepped personally into the center of the controversy as Democratic Ways and Means committeemen deferred on the President's alternative tax plans. On Thursday, Representative Robert L. Doughton (N. C.), ranking Democratic member, even proposed a four-billion-dollar, slightly modified version of the Knutson bill.

Dingell Backs Truman Plan

Representative John D. Dingell (D., Mich.), however, said he will move in committee to substitute the President's plan without change. This provides for $40 tax cuts for every member of a household and reimpose a modified corporate excess profits tax to pay the 3.2-billion-dollar cost.

Before the House showdown, Dingell's bill is expected to be revised into the Democratic recommit motion by adding at least one vote-getting amendment—split income tax privileges for married couples in all States. Presumably this will be done with the Administration's tacit consent.

In one quarter, President Truman was represented as not opposed to extending the community property principle, for tax purposes, to married couples in all States, but to have some unresolved doubts about the legal implications. To some recent White House visitors he pointed out that property titles in some States might be clouded by the extension.

Addition of the split income tax principle would mean an 800-million-dollar net loss in revenue. Instead of making this up, by increasing the proposed corporate excess profits tax, House Democrats may let this cut stand on its own feet.

Pending a Ways and Means Committee vote on the Knutson bill Monday or Tuesday, the House-Senate Legislative Budget Committee held back-stage conferences on spending cuts. Yesterday there was some Senate GOP talk of holding the budget slash to 2½ billion dollars instead of three billion.

It remained highly doubtful that any conclusions on spending ceilings will be reached before the House votes on tax cuts February 2. Senator Robert A. Taft's Senate Republican Steering Committee yesterday referred the whole question of budget cutting to a full conference Monday of all Republican Senators.

CIO-PAC Votes to Fight Against Third Party

By Harold W. Ward
Post Reporter

The CIO Political Action Committee lined up with opponents of a third party yesterday, and promptly opened a drive for a minimum of $1 a head from 6,000,000 CIO members to build a block, ward and precinct organization.

The PAC's executive board voted 7 to 2 for a resolution condemning the third party idea, although without mentioning the name of Henry A. Wallace.

"We know that an untapped reservoir of votes rests within the ranks of our own movement which is greater than the vote of any third party," hte PAC board said in a formal statement ending its session.

The statement was opposed by Albert J. Fitzgerald, president, and Julius Emspak, secretary-treasurer, of the United Electrical Workers, one of the CIO's "big three" unions, claiming 600,000 members.

Earlier, the CIO executive board of 52 top union leaders reaffirmed support of the Marshall program for European recovery, and this was opposed by left-wing unionists from whom Harry Bridges, West Coast longshore chief, was the spokesman. The board voted 33 to 11 against the third party on Thursday.

Bridges, who said his union of approximately 70,000 members had adopted a resolution opposing the Marshall Plan, said the original Marshall "idea" would have been "acceptable to the American people and the world," but that the present one differs from it.

"An aid program proposed by a Wall Street-Military dominated administration and a reactionary Congress has developed, aiming at American big business economic control of Europe and gearing our entire domestic economic and political structure into the drive toward war," Bridges said.

The outcome of the board meetings showed that the forces adhering to the policies of CIO President Philip Murray, Secretary-Treasurer James B. Carey and Vice President Walter P. Reuther were in control.

But it also indicated that the leftists like Bridges and Emspak would not be bound by the political declarations of the executive board or PAC. This was certain to create division in PAC's activity, but Murray said "details" of how to implement the policy statements had not yet been worked out.

The CIO executive board served notice that CIO unions would go after substantial wage increases in negotiations next spring, and pledged the membership to work for legislation to halt inflation, control prices, and repeal the Taft-Hartley Act.

Mrs. Harris Gets 15-Yr. Term for Slaying Husband

Lawyers to Appeal; Ex-Bureau Employe Sentenced to Five Years in Abortion

Mrs. Minnie Harris, 37, yesterday was given a 15-year-to-life sentence for the murder of her husband, James E. Harris, 40-year-old labor official.

District Court Justice Edward M. Curran also sentenced Harold D. Miller, 46, former Bureau of Standards employe, to 5 to 15 years for performing an abortion on a 25-year-old receptionist who later died.

Mrs. Harris of 3120 13th st. nw., was convicted of second-degree murder in death of her husband last April. Harris, a business agent of the Cafeteria and Restaurant Workers Union, CIO, was hacked to death in his bed.

Her attorneys, Robert I. Miller and Joseph A. McMenamin said they would appeal after a motion for new trial was denied by Justice Curran. Assistant U. S. Attorney A. J. McLaughlin prosecuted the case.

Miller of 1604 Q st. nw. was convicted January 14. He was prosecuted by Assistant U. S. Attorney Cecil R. Heflin.

Five other persons, three of them under 20 years old, were sentenced yesterday for charges ranging from assault with a dangerous weapon to purse snatching.

Daniel J. Brown, 19, of 306 15th st. se., was sentenced to three to 12 years in the robbery-beating of a taxi driver, Joseph Brodsky, 1237 Raum st. ne., last October. Brodsky was beaten and robbed of $13, his watch and taxi at 53rd and E sts. ne.

Gets Two Years in Assault

Earl E. Bennett, 26, of 407 New York ave. nw., convicted of assault with a dangerous weapon and carrying a two-to-six-year sentence. Bennett was found guilty of wounding Joseph L. King, 24, of 1247 6th st. nw., during an argument at 417 New York ave. nw., last July.

Thomas P. Hawkins, 19, of 116 5th st. se., and Nelson Spriggs, 26, of 1265 11th st. sw., were given one-to-three-year sentences on conviction of unauthorized use of an automobile. The car was taken last November.

Louis H. Beale, 19, of 1840 Wyoming ave. nw., convicted of robbery by purse snatching, was given three to nine years. He was found guilty of snatching a purse from Betty Hofstetter, of 1833 19th st. nw., last June 7 at Florida ave. and T st. nw.

Sex Offender Gets 3-Year, 11-Month Term

Jail sentences totaling 3 years and 11 months were given yesterday to a 39-year-old man found guilty of indecent assault on a 3-year-old girl.

Recipient of court severity was John St. Francis Slaughter of 1002 21st st. nw., who was caught in the child's bedroom September 13 by her enraged father. A stranger to the family, he allegedly just walked in and began molesting the girl.

Judge George D. Neilson of Municipal Court castigated the defendant as "a disgrace to the community" and commended the jury that found Slaughter guilty on all charges. Explaining the jail sentences, which will run consecutively, Judge Neilson pointed out that Slaughter's police record showed more than 100 arrests as well as a two-year term in Maryland State Penitentiary on an attempted rape charge.

Besides the indecent assault charge, Slaughter was also found guilty of drunk and disorderly conduct and unlawful entry.

In other sex cases heard in local courts yesterday, Judge Armond Scott fined Raymond J. Roche, 29, of 120 Galatin st. nw., $500 on a charge of indecent assault on another man. The judge suspended an additional sentence of one year imprisonment and placed Roche on probation for a year providing the defendant submit to psychiatric treatment.

Judge Scott also set January 30 as date of sentencing Franklin George Smith, 37, of 241 9th st. ne., who was found guilty by a jury yesterday of indecent exposure. Smith was charged with exposing himself before women as he rode an elevator in a downtown Washington department store, on November 11.

Policeman Freed of Lie Charge

A Police Trial Board yesterday dismissed one of four counts against a policeman after four hours of testimony on charges he mistreated a prisoner.

Defendant in the hearing is Pvt. Jerome J. Jones, 28, of 321 K st., se., who was charged in connection with the arrest of Peter J. Stathis, 3228 Park pl. nw.

The trial board, after dismissing a charge of making untruthful statements to his superior officer, began deliberation of three other counts: Conduct unbecoming an officer, maltreating a prisoner and unnecessary use of a revolver.

Barrett Makes Plea

Earlier yesterday, Police Chief Robert J. Barrett appeared voluntarily in behalf of another policeman who had pleaded guilty on charges of failing to communicate with his station and failure to patrol his beat.

Barrett, in his surprise visit, asked leniency for Pvt. Robert C. Redding, who had admitted being asleep in a truck on his beat November 28; he said Redding had been an "ideal" officer.

The board continued consideration of neglect of duty charges and Redding's guilty plea until February 13. It ruled out charges of unbecoming conduct and inefficiency against him.

In a third case, Pvt. Robert J. Wagner, of the Thirteenth Precinct, was recommended for a fine of $100 after pleading guilty to conduct prejudicial to good order of the Police Department. He admitted taking sick leave without sufficient reason.

Says Policeman Hit Him

In the Jones case, Stathis told the board the policeman had come to the apartment he was visiting at 11:30 p. m., and ordered removal of newspapers deposited outside the door for the trash collector. Stathis charged the policeman struck him after he had made a remark about the police department; then took him to the station when Stathis started to run.

Jones was investigating a complaint about the trash.

The policeman testified Stathis used profanity and had pushed him twice, then clenched his fist as though to strike him after Jones announced his intention of arresting him for disorderly conduct.

Jones said he pulled his revolver when Stathis put his hand to his back as though to draw a weapon.

Henderson Check Travey Traced At Nimro Trial

Testimony on the whereabouts of a $2628 income tax refund of Loy W. Henderson, State Department official, yesterday highlighted the embezzlement trial of Bernard P. Nimro.

Nimro, tax consultant of 1614 K st. nw., is under trial before a District Court jury charged with embezzlement and larceny after trust of the refund. Henderson has testified he left the refund check in Nimro's care because he felt such heavy repayment was in error.

Mrs. Loretta S. Nimro testified yesterday that her husband cashed the check for 1945 tax refund and gave the money, which she, as his secretary, placed in the office safe. To her knowledge, she said, it is still there.

Further testimony yesterday purported to show that Nimro, after his arrest on Henderson's complaint on August 15, consulted with Albert E. Brault, attorney, who advised him to make out a certified check for the $2628 amount. The check is now in the office safe, testified Mrs. Wave Shearer, office employe.

The trial will be resumed Monday.

Maybe 'Ladies' Will Tell

ABC Studies Braintwister: Is 9th Street Nice or Naughty?

By Joseph Paull
Post Reporter

The divergent philosophies of downtown Ninth Street were expounded yesterday before the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board.

On the one side is the view that the part of that street between Pennsylvania and New York avenues is the Tenderloin of Washington. The other has it that the area is populated by and large by hard-working citizens striving to raise the reputation of the street.

The matter came up in the case of the Reno Foods Corp., 929-931 9th st. new., which is trying to get its liquor license renewed. After half a day's session the discussion continued until January 29.

Drunks on Church Steps

The "Tenderloin" view was declared by Police Captain Robert C. Pearce, head of the First Precinct. He said that conditions were such that it was necessary to keep two men on duty along the street 16 hours a day.

He was seconded by Patrolman Lavelle Edmiston who said that the part of the nightlife of 9th Street that went on in the Reno establishment has been none too lovely. For instance, he said, since September he had ousted 13 drunks and had often seen prostitutes and other suspicious persons in the place.

Paul H. McMurray, chairman of the official board of the Mount Vernon Methodict Church, said that it hasn't been too seldom that drunks have slept on the church steps.

Nick Papanicolas, who has proclaimed himself the helper of property owners on the street, said that loiterers and drunks are endangering real estate values.

On the middle ground was Rudolph B. Behrend, real estate man, who happens to own the building where the Reno firm is operated by John C. Miliarakis.

Behrend said that many people of a "combination of low financial and moral station" frequent the area. But, according to Behrend, the real estate values of the area have increased "notwithstanding the low-type stratum element."

An apparent champion of the street is Joseph H. Gerone who wore a bright blue uniform of a supervisor in a special police force. He said that patrons of many places on 9th st. were decent people who merely wanted entertainment.

As for prostitutes, Gerone said he chose to call them "'ladies of the evening' because it was more respectful." Moreover, he said, you couldn't recognize one very easily because Congress had not chosen to have them wear "red patches on their arms."

Painters Frequent the Reno

Also favoring the view that the "element" on 9th st. is no low class was Parascho Vallas, part owner of a grocery store at 916 9th st. nw., who said that there was little loitering on that street. E. W. Christ, a painting contractor, said he often went to the Reno because there he was almost certain to find painters when he needed them.

Another case heard yesterday was that of Samuel, Max and Abe Jeweler who seek a renewal of license at 2301 Champlain st.

To be heard Monday are cases involving Nick Bruno and John Karkules of 331½ Pennsylvania ave. se., who seeks reissue of a Class C license and Joseph A. Farrieri of 335 Pennsylvania ave. se., who seeks a Class D license.

2 Apartments Given Right To Hike Rents

Rent increases ranging from 6 to more than 8 per cent were recommended yesterday for 128 units in two northwest Washington apartment houses by District Rent Control Administration examiners.

Examiner James G. Tyson recommended an 8.82 per cent boost for 62 units at The Ambassador apartment house, 1750 16th st. nw. He said the hike would raise rents for one room and bath apartments from $25 to $30 a month; for three rooms and bath from $60 to $65 a month.

Capital View Realty Co. had asked a 20 per cent boost to bring in an additional $7015 a year to cover higher maintenance and operating costs, taxes and water rent. Tyson's recommendation would bring the owner only $3096 more a year.

Examiner Denis K. Lane recommended a boost averaging 6.47 per cent for 66 units of an apartment house at 3901 Connecticut ave. nw. Rents would go up from $52.50 to $55.50 a month for two rooms and bath; from $130 to $137.75 a month for six rooms and two baths, he said.

Thomas J. Fisher and Company asked an 18.83 per cent boost to bring in $13,050 a year for increased expenses, taxes and water rents. Lane's recommendation would give the owner $4488 a year.

Buyers Amazed

Meat, Eggs, Butter Drop In Price Here

Meat, butter and egg price reductions in Washington yesterday brought good news to local housekeepers.

Retail price cuts on eggs varied from two to five cents a dozen, while butter was down between three and six cents a pound. Prices ranged from 88 cents upward in chain stores.

Meat retailers also were in step—reportnig a reduction in price since last week of five to 10 cents per pound.

Dairy officials and householders were both puzzled at the sudden turn of events. Some tossed it off as "just normal market fluctuations," others credited the weather as the cause, but most were simply mystified.

There were wide fluctuations in prices between dairies. One cropped its retail price on butter three cents, and eggs, four cents. At the same time, another dairy reported a price drop of six cents for butter—from $1.02 to $.96—and five cents for eggs, or from 75 to 70 cents.

Negro School Equality Asked In Court Suit

Browne P-TA Action Based on Decision In Oklahoma Case

The Browne Junior High School Parent-Teacher Asociation yesterday asked District Court to order the Board of Education to provide at once school facilities for Negro students equal to those provided white students.

Belford V. Lawson, jr., attorney for the P-TA, said the basis of the suit is a recent Supreme Court decision which requires the State of Oklahoma to give the same legal training to Negro students that it does to white.

"We are prepared to carry our suit to the Supreme Court if necessary," Lawson said.

The suit asked that the Board of Education and school officers be enjoined from violating the law by assigning to Negroes elementary schools for junior high use when adequate junior high facilities are available.

The suit is the second to be filed this week and the third to be filled on behalf of Browne students since the Board of Education approved transfer of Blow and Webb, white elementary schools, to use as annexes to the Negro school.

Segregation Not Attacked

Lawson said that the suit does not directly attack segregation but seeks equal facilities under the dual school system.

The suit states that after February 1 students assigned to Blow and Webb will be "denied any proper instruction in music, art, typewriting, home economics, woodshop, printshop, metalshop and other vocational skills as is provided white children."

The suit further declares that the Board of Education sa assigned to white students high school buildings with a capacity of 1700 above enrollment and junior high school buildings with a capacity of 4700 more than enrollment, while Negro high school buildings have an enrollment of 900 students more than capacity and Negro junior high buildings an enrollment of 1900 above capacity.

P-TA, 2 Students Sue

The suit, brought in the name of the P-TA and of two students, Betty Portel, 14, and Arthur Taplet, 14, through their mothers, Mrs. Edith Portel, 4406 Eades st. ne., and Mrs. Barbara Taplet, 1232 Maryland ave. nw.

On Wednesday, two other Browne students sued the board and Corning for $110,000 in damages, claiming that they and "others so situated" had been denied equal educational opportunity.

A third suit which sought an injunction to prevent the board from transferring Blow and Webb was dropped. Approximately 200 of the students are still "on strike" at Blow and Webb.

Mason Backed Unanimously by Senate Group

If Necessary

Mason Set To Fire Heads At Gallinger

An order tao remove key personnel, if necessary, to correct "bad administration" at Gallinger Hospital will be issued by Commissioner Guy Mason, he said yesterday.

The directive, he said, will go to Health Officer Dr. George C. Ruhland.

Mason's action came after receipt of an eight-page report on corrective measures in the hospital's psychiatric division, recommended by Dr. S. Bernard Wortis, noted psychiatric authority. Dr. Wortis made a survey of the divisoin last November.

Mason Cites Report

The report, Mason said, verified all I've said befoire" about inefficient operatoin. "Let the chips fall where they may,55 he boomed.

Thirty-seven items were listed in the report, submitted by Dr. Alvin Sweeney, hospital superintendent and forwarded to Mason through Dr. Ruhland.

Mason observed most of the projects were "ordinary maintenance jobs" which "should have been done long ago. They had the money and the workmen," he said.

He said he interpreted Dr. Sweeney's renewal of recommendations for a new psychiatric service to mean a proposed new psychiatric building. Funds for this, he said, are included in 1949 budget requests and it is "one of the major things I'm going to fight for."

The report noted specific action taken to correct situations criticized by Dr. Wortis. Among them:

Patients are now manacled only on doctors' orders and only in "the greatest emergency"; study courses provided for personnel working in psychiatric wards.

Employment of another doctor in psychiatry and plans to hire another; building, service and equipment improvements, including stairway protection, ventilating fans in wards, mattress replacements.

Dr. Sweeney noted provision had been made for new elevators and heating improvements for the psychiatric buildings and listed a number of other minor improvements, but explained that lack of personnel kept Gallinger from providing adequate nursing care or out-patient psychiatric treatment.

The Commissioners Thursday asked Congress to appropriate $54,500 for new elevators and heating improvements.

Commissioner's Confirmation Seen Assured by Committee Action

By Edward Ryan
Post Reporter

Guy Mason yesterday won unanimous backing of the Senate District Comittee for a third three-year term as District Commissioner.

The vote for Mason followed an open hearing, in which the Commissioner heard himself variously praised and criticized for his official performance. Mason did not testify.

He was praised by spokesmen for citizens' organizations and the Central Labor Union. He was attacked by spokesmen for CIO groups and the Southern Conference for Human Welfare.

The committee decision to back Mason, and the fact that it was unanimous, virtually assured his confirmation by the Senate. District Chairman C. Douglass Buck (R., Del.) said he will ask the Senate to approve Mason early next week.

Citizens Oppose Home Rule

A sidelight of the hearing was the fact that the citizens groups produced several outspoken opponents to home rule for Washington.

Opponents of Mason charged he should not be a Commissioner because he did not support home rule.

Mason told reporters after the hearing this charge was not accurate. He said he does favor the democratic principle of suffrage, but he opposes the feature of the House home rule bill that would permit dual voting here—letting residents vote in the proposed local elections while still keeping their State voting rights. He said he also favors streamlining the District government.

"I have no objection to electing the Commissioners here, but that is a matter of policy for Congress to decide, not for the fellow who's holding a job in the Government now," he said.

The Post Is Criticized

Another sidelight of the hearing was an outspoken criticism of The Washington Post.

Senator Arthur Capper (R., Kans.) asked A. J. Driscoll, president of the Mid-City Citizens and a member of the District Board of Public Welfare, how the papers here stood on Mason.

Driscoll said he did not think The Washington Post was very keen about him, and that he had the animosity of some individuals there. W. A. Lowder of the Lincoln Park Citizens Association, said, "The Washington Post to my mind has animosity against everything, including the Police Department."

Advises Against Home Rule

Earlier Lowder hit hard at home rule for the District. "We never had a finer form of government than we've got today," he said. "As for home rule, we never want it here.

"Now you've got things under control," he told the Senators, "and keep it under control. If you let it get away from you it will be your own fault."

"We don't agree with you on home rule," said Senator Buck.

"You'll never see it in my time, Senator," replied Lowder.

Standardized Public Aid Plan Approved

The District Board of Public Welfare yesterday approved a proposed assistance law standardizing eligibility requirements.

Under present operations, the board operates with four standards of eligibility in old age, blind, dependent children and general public assistance.

The proposed revision would create a uniform, one-year residence requirement for eligibility, simplify administration and permit reimbursement from the Federal Government under the Social Security Act.

The changes will be submitted to the Commissioners for action.

The board yesterday also:

Began work on a plan to separate delinquent from nondelinquent children in the receiving homes and to separate them on the basis of age group.

Broadened qualifications for rehabilitation aid. Currently the board cannot give aid to a person who is capable of working. Under the new plan, a person taking physical rehabilitation courses may receive aid from the board until he completes the course.

Montgomery Schools Lauded For 'Cooperation'

Baltimore, Jan. 23 (AP).—Most Montgomery County schools have "cooperated very fully" in helping the State education department set up its standards for certification, Dr. Thomas G. Pullen, superintendent of schools, said today.

So far, 43 county schools have received certificates. The figure does not include trade schools.

Other institutions are still being investigated under the 1945 law providing for education department certification of all schools operating in Maryland.

Schools which do not meet the State-imposed standards immediately are being given a "reasonable amount of time" to adjust their curriculum, Pullen said.

Of the Montgomery County schools certified to date, 17 are nursery schools, nine kindergarten, eight elementary, four secondary, three primary, and two tutoring institutions.

18 Accept Krug Bid To Form Coal Council

Secretary of Interior Krug tonight named 18 persons who have accepted his invitation to form a national bituminous coal council to advise the Interior Department. John L. Lewis was not among them.

Lewis disclosed Thursday he had rejected the invitation in a letter which said he could "conceive of nothing more anemic or futile" than such a council.

All the persons named are mining company executives. A spokesman for Krug said no other union representatives, aside from Lewis, were invited.

Riders Sink Teeth In Transit Problem

Capital Transit has an abundance of other people's teeth to gnash over other people's forgetfulness.

The company's year-end review of lost articles found on its streetcars and buses was released yesterday—an interesting study on how much may be carried on common carriers for a dime. Such as:

A quantity of false teeth; a chain store carry-all without groceries, and an automobile tire.

The total of forgotten items during the year was 20,529, with money one of the top items. Cash found totaled $17,407.40, of which $17,512.62 was claimed by losers. The remainder went to the finders. Bonds and checks found on streetcars and buses totaled 17,423.93—al of which found its way back to rightful owners.

Articles unclaimed, including more than 675 umbrellas, are either turned over to Goodwill Industries or sold with the proceeds going to the company Employes' Relief Association.

All articles valued at more than 25 are held by the company's lost and found department, 1416 F st. nw., for one year before being turned over to the finder or considered unclaimed.

2d Charge Faced

Terms Given Husbands of 2 Teen-Agers

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 23 (AP).—Husbands of two teen-age girls were sentenced today to serve six months each at the city farm for contributing to the delinquency of minors and also were served with warrants charging them with contempt of court.

Judge H. G. Cochran ordered bench warrants in Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court against Floyd Swanner, 21, and Milton Tyndall, 25, husbands of the former Frances Anderson, 16, and Pauline Anderson, 14, respectively. He cited them in contempt of court for alleged violation of an order that the husbands and wives were not to associate.

Notice of appeals were filed by the two young men in the delinquency cases, and Cochran set bond at $1000 each. He also set bond at $100 each on the contempt charges. They are scheduled to appear in court to answer these charges February 1.

Judge Cochran ordered the two girls, who were charged with incorrigibility, returned to the custody of their parents. The charges against the girls were brought by their mother, Mrs. A. W. Anderson.

The girls have been living with their husbands since December 18, when they were released under bond of $500 each.

The original charges were brought December 10 by Mrs. Anderson, in an effort to have them separated until she could have the marriage annulled. She subsequently filed Chancery memoranda in Norfolk Circuit Court, asking annulments, but has since indicated that she will not follow through in these actions. The Juvenile Court charges were not within her power to drop, however.

2 Men Drift Night on Bay In Open Boat

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 23 (AP).—A harrowing tale of a night adrift in a small open boat in icy Chesapeake Bay was related today by two Coast Guardsmen who were nearly unconscious from the freezing wind and snow when rescued near here.

Chief Boatswains Mate Paul S. Embert, 48, and S/1c Ronald E. Schaefer, 22, survived the ordeal, during which their craft drifted 20 miles through the night after the motor failed.

They had taken a lighthouse attendant to Seven Foot Knoll lighthouse and were returning to Ferry Grove landing when the engine stopped.

Unable to make repairs, they began drifting and once nearly were run over by a freighter, which did not hear their cries for aid.

They aroused each other when one would fall asleep to keep from freezing to death. Finally, the little boat became wedged in ice floes about 30 feet from shore off Log Inn.

Embert began wading ashore in four feet of water and ice and was seen by W. T. Emory, owner of the inn, as he neared land.

Half frozen, Embert was unable to talk coherently for a few minutes.

Emory and Charles Harris, a waiter at the inn, then learned from Embert that Schaefer was still in the boat, and Harris carried him ashore. The two men were given first aid by the tavern proprietor, and put to bed after Coast Guard authorities in Baltimore were notified.

House Group Tries to Settle Columbia Tech-VA Dispute

Paul Leverone | Emrys Jones | L. M. Hoover | Wendell Ealy

Among those who testified at a hearing into the Columbia Tech-Veterans' Administration dispute yesterday

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

A House Veterans Subcommittee, switching from fact-finding to mediation, almost—but not quite settled the dispute which has ousted 300 GI students from Columbia Technical Institute here.

At the end of five hours of interrogation by the subcommittee, representatives of the school and Veterans Administration promised to seek an agreement for return of the students under the GI Bill of Rights by next Friday.

VA has insisted on a financial statement of school operations for the past year as a requisite for a new tuition contract.

Paul J. Leverone, who directs the local school from his home in Miami, Fla., has hitherto refused to submit the financial statement on the grounds that VA was overstepping its authority, and that such submission would inevitably lead to VA-imposed terms whereby the school would have to run at a loss.

Sinus Explains Remote Control

Leverone testified that he and his wife were coow..ers of the school; that he was also principal and she, treasurer. Challenged to explain his "remote control" operation of the school, Leverone said he lived in Miami Beach because of his "sinus."

The Columbia Tech head produced for the committee the controversial financial statement, and disclosed that he and his wife each drew $18,000 last year as their individual salaries. He added that in the two preceding years the school operated at a loss and that neither he nor his wife drew any salary. He also asserted that he had made a heavy capital investment in the school in order to expand it to meet increased enrollment by veterans.

Prewar enrollment was around 500 a year—it was testified; last year's enrollment rose to 1100, of whom some 800 were veterans attending under Federal subsidy.

May Broaden Education Probe

Chairman Homer A. Ramey (R., Ohio), together with the other half dozen members of the subcommittee sharply questioned all witnesses, and indicated that once the Columbia Tech situation was cleared up the "fact-finding" unit would broaden its probe to cover VA relations with all private, profit-making schools in which presently over 300,000 GIs are enrolled.

Four students testified and told the committee how the contractual stalemate threatened to force some 800 students out of the school, and how a last-minute compromise saved 450 day students, but left 300 part-time night GI students to their own devices. Approximately 100 of the night students have returned to the school at their own expense, it was testified.

Students testifying included Emery Jones, 29, of 1808 Belmont st., nw.; L. M. Hoover, 36, of 1109 South Washington st., Alexandria; Wendell B. Ealy, 25, of 6811 Eastern ave., Takoma Park; and Francis Gilliam, 35, of 1653 Fort Davis st. ne.

Balcony Start At White House Set Monday

The entire installation will require from four to five weeks, and cost about $15,000, its contractor, F. H. Martell of 1023 20th st. nw. said yesterday.

Work will proceed despite adoption of a resolution Thursday night at a joint meeting of the Baltimore and Washington Chapters, American Institute of Architects, scoring the President's refusal to heed the advice of the Fine Arts Commission.

Specifically, the members voted accord with a resolution previously passed by the executive committee of the Washington Chapter, AIA, which declared:

"The executive committee of the Washington Chapter of the American Institute of Architects, appreciating the contribution made by the National Commission of Fine Arts toward development of the City of Washington, disapproves as a matter of principle any action of the President or any Government agency tending to ignore recommendations of the commission in all cases where the Commission has authority to pass on the design of public buildings."

By Gen. Doolittle

Golden Rule For Peace Proposed

Lieut. Gen. James H. Doolittle last night said lasting peace can only be won by application of the Golden Rule, and warned that civilization will not survive another war.

He urged Anglo-American cooperation to promote world peace. "From this nucleus of two nations . . . we can prove by precept that our democratic principles are sound and right."

General Doolittle, commander of the Eighth Air Force in England during the war, spoke before more than 15 members of the Fellowship of United States-British Comrades in its first annual meeting at the Statler Hotel. General Doolittle is president of the United States branch.

He said the fellowship should strive now toward "development and extension of international friendship and understanding on a very broad basis."

While calling military preparedness a necessity, the general said it was at best a temporary expedient. It is essential, however, he said, until a "legalized world organization" can maintain peace.

Military men, he said, "know that from another major war there will emerge no victor, no vanquished, only victims." The way to establish "true and lasting peace," he declared, is through the "personal and international application of the Golden Rule."

Grand Duchess' Anniversary

Luxembourg's Legation Gives Birthday Fete

By Marie McNair

THE birthday anniversary of Her Royal Highness the Grand Duchess of Luxembourg was celebrated in fitting style yesterday at a large and lavish reception at the Luxembourg Legation.

Traffic was slowed along Massachusetts ave., as limousines turned in at the driveway. Camera bulbs flashed inside as notables looked into the lens. There were two buffets, and bars, one in the dining room, a simpler one on the floor above where the Minister and Mme. Le Gallais have their collection of Chinese art and furnishings arranged in their own private suite.

The personal popularity of the hosts had brought out lots of faces rarely seen at day-by-day afternoon fetes.

There was Miss Frances Perkins, former Secretary of Labor, up stairs admiring the Chinese paintings. Broad shouldered Dr. Hans Kindler, conductor of the National Symphony Orchestra, elbowing his way past the buffet. Slender Mrs. Robert Woods Bliss moving with the crowd, and Reepresentative Edith Nourse Rogers, who appeared with a pink camellia pinned to her mink coat.

The former Austrian Minister, Edgar Prochnik, came with Mrs. Prochnik; Archibald Wiggins, Under Secretary of the Treasury, watched the passing scene from a corner with his pretty daughter, Elizabeth, in blue to match her eyes.

Wears Jade Necklace

But, to go back a bit. The Minister and Mme. Le Gallais greeted guests in the drawing room, Mme. Le Gallais in a handsome gown of green and gold metallic cloth draped to a soft bow on the hip. And with it she wore a magnificent waist length necklace of green jade.

Mme. Martins, wife of the Brazilian Ambassador, stopped in on her way to dinner and posed for a picture with her sister, Mme. de Bocayuva Cunha, who is visiting her.

The Norwegian Ambassador and Mme. Munthe de Morgenstierne were there and the Cuban Ambassador and Senora de Belt; Mme. Bonnet, wife of the French Ambassador; the Yugoslav Ambassador, Sava Kosanovic, and his sister, Dr. Mica Trbojevic; the Polish Ambassador and Mme. Winiewicz, and brown-eyed Mme. Dendramis, wife of the Greek Ambassador.

Mr. Arnold a Guest

Upstairs where there was no crowd at all Thurman Arnold was in serious conversation with Mrs. English Gordon. Mrs. Deborah Glassford, who lived in China for a number of years, was praising the objects d' art, and here and there were Mrs. Harold Burton in a smart new striped taffeta hat; Mr. and Mrs. Constantine Stackelberg, Mrs. Ollie James, Mrs. Frank Morrow, Mrs. George Mesta, greeting Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ross whom she was to meet again at her dinner last night in honor of the Secretary of the Army and Mrs. Royall.

Ralph Forster was helping the ladies with their coats in the foyer; the former French Premier and Mme. Chautemps were among those sampling the cold lobster and hot fish balls at the buffet; Mme. Eriksson, wife of the Swedish Minister, smiled her way through the throng.

Then there were Mrs. Emil Hurja who has temporarily lost her voice; Mr. and Mrs. Eldon P. King, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Morris, Mrs. Parker West, Mrs. J. J. Mack in a gown combining blue metallic cloth and black; Mme. Julia Brambilla, Mme. Vladimir Rybar, Mrs. Tomas Cajigas, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Whittemore, Mr. and Mrs. James L. Houghteling and Mrs. Edward R. Finkenstaedt.

Communism Is Target of Aid, Mrs. Bridges Tells Club Group

By Genevieve Reynlods

"The Marshall Plan is aimed at destroying communism in Europe," declared Mrs. Styles Bridges, wife of the Senator from New Hampshire, in a talk yesterday before members of the Congressional Club, preceding a tea.

Back from a trip to the Continent where she visited France, Germany, Switzerland, Austria and Italy, she said that she discovered Europeans lack confidence in America's intention to go through with various aid programs. Incidentally, for the record, she made it clear that she paid her own expenses for the journey.

Recommending aid to Europe, Mrs. Bridges said that economic aid should be implemented with military and political assistance.

Describing the "cigarette economy" in Germany, she told how a carton brought 750 marks; how the Russians are making and importing cigarettes and trying to sell them under American labels.

Visits DP Camp

While in Germany she visited several Displaced Persons Camps. Depicting them as the "Cancer of Europe," she suggested that legislation be passed to settle one way or another the DP's status. "You can't leave them there indefinitely," she explained. "Either dissolve the camps and let them roam at will over Europe or bring them into the U. S. on a quota system."

Mrs. Bridges said that many of the DPs steal American automobiles, furs and other valuables and sell them on the black market; that a raid on one DP camp produced 12 stolen automobiles.

"There's no doubt but the DP camps are the center of black market activities in Germany," she insisted.

Where the black market flourishes in France and Italy, there's either feast or famine. The rich eat well and the poor starve. But in England everybody eats the same monotonous fare, according to her observation.

In Greece she said that Senator Bridges and other congressional leaders found a 75-million-dollar stock pile of lend-lease and UNRRA materials which had not been distributed to the starving Greek people.

Miss Boyer Is Presented At Tea Party

Dressed in white marquisette studded with rhinestones, Miss Augusta Boyer made her bow to society yesterday at a tea on the 25th anniversary of her parents, Col. and Mrs. James Washington Boyer. The debutante's gown had a full skirt and fitted bodice with rhinestone straps. She carried an old-fashioned bouquet edged in lace frill, made of sweetheart roses, freesia and narcissus.

Mrs. Boyer, dressed in wine velvet with gardenias at the shoulder, received with her daughter in the drawing room of their home. Spring flowers centered the tea table and filled the drawing room.

Assistants who took turns presiding at the tea table were Lady Balfour, the Hon. Mrs. W. P. N. Edwards, Mrs. Robert Whitney Imbrie, Mrs. Hobart Brooks, Mrs. J. J. Sebastian, Mrs. Gardiner Luce, Mrs. Armand Chrapaty, Mrs. William M. Canby, Mrs. Ruth Connell, Miss Helen Christopherson, Miss Emily Brown and Miss Patricia Angelo.

Ask Anne — Your Questions On Homemaking

A DELICATELY textured and taste-tempting fruit whip is an appealing dessert and a just-right finale for many menus. This Prune Meringue Frappe, with its fluffy meringue topping, was made by the following recipe:

2/3 cup prune pulp
2 tablespoons sugar
2/3 cup evaporated milk, chilled icy cold
1 1/3 tablespoons lemon juice
2 egg whites
1/8 teaspoon cream of tartar
1/4 cup sugar

Stir sugar into prune pulp until granules are dissolved. When prune pulp is cold, whip milk stiff. Add lemon juice and whip even stiffer. Fold in prune pulp. Pour into shallow baking dish. Beat egg whites until frothy. Add cream of tartar and continue beating until almost stiff. Add sugar, a tablespoonful at a time, and continue beating until very stiff. Spread meringue over prune whip and brown quickly under broiling flame. The recipe makes 6 servings

During the holiday season some red port wine was splashed on my recently papered wall. The splashes are about the size of a nickel. There are about 14 of them. Is there any possible way to remove these stains? R. N. E.

Cover the spots with a thick layer of a soft paste made by moistening Fuller's earth or cornstarch with equal parts of water and alcohol. Allow the paste to remain until dry, then remove with a soft brush. It may be necessary to repeat the treatment. If this doesn't remove the stain, apply diluted household bleach with a water color paint brush. Have the brush only slightly wet so that there will not be enough liquid to run down the wall. This will remove the color of the paper from the spot, but when the paper is dry the pattern can be filled in with water-color paints or crayons. Be sure to test the effect of the poultice on an inconspicuous spot before starting treatment, for the color in some wall papers run or "bleed."

What is the best method in cleaning natural reptile shoes and bag? J. S.

Use a special reptile cleaner which you can buy from your shoe cleaner to clean both bag and shoes. Follow the directions which come with the cleaner you buy.

I would like to give a little girl I am raising a birthday party. She will be 7 on February 5 and it will be her first birthday party. All the guests will be girls. Would you please give me a list of games? D. W.

One game that 7-year-old girls would have fun playing is a contest with soap bubbles. Provide each guest with a soda straw. For the bubble end, make four slits in the straw, ½-inch long, and bend the slits back. For a bubble solution, use liquid shampoo diluted with water or buy several jars of the commercial bubble solution which makes such wonderful bubbles. To prevent spilling accidents, pour a little of the bubble solution into heavy paper cups for each girl. Now for the games: Stretch a rope across the room about 2 or 3 feet from the floor. Divide the players into teams, one team on each side of the rope and the same distance back from the rope. Each player tries to blow a bubble over the rope. If she does so, she scores for her team. Each player is permitted three tries. The team having the largest score wins. While they are still blowing bubbles, a simple prize can be given to the girl blowing the largest bubble and to the girl whose bubble remains floating the longest time.

A clothespin doll dressing contest is fun for girls this age. Give each girl a clothespin. Set within reach of all a box containing crepe paper or (and) scraps of material for dresses and hats, crayons to make eyes, nose, etc., several needles threaded with heavy thread for sewing the dresses onto the "dolls," scissors and such. Perhaps if you would "dress" a clothespin very simply in advance of the party it would show the guests how to proceed. Then tell them you are giving a prize for the prettiest doll, the most stylish, the best dressed, etc. Have any other mothers who may be present act as judges. Let the girls take the dolls home as favors. Since this is a February party, you could carry out the Valentine motif, in decorations and refreshments.

What is the complete address of the publisher in New York of Mr. Wagner's book, "Wines and How to Make Them." M. P.

I would appreciate receiving a good recipe for making cheese cake like the thick, fluffy kind displayed in bakeries, which is usually about 2½ inches thick. I have tried several recipes, and in spite of all my efforts in carefully following the instructions they fall flatter than a pancake. I have used cottage cheese and cream cheese; left it in the oven to cool; baked it in a spring form pan, etc., but only to meet the same discouraging results. M. M. W.

A recipe for cheese cake such as you describe was printed in these columns on Saturday, December 27. Followed exactly, this recipe should give you good results. As you have discovered, making a cheese cake is not the simplest thing in the world. They resemble sponge cakes in ingredients and because of this, great care must be taken to bake them at very low constant temperature. If you do not have an oven regulator which you can depend on, I suggest you use a thermometer in the oven. Experiment in advance of making the cake so you know how to keep a constant 250 degrees. Also; the mixing is important. The eggs should be at room temperature before starting to beat them. When mixing in the other ingredients, fold rather than stir. This will prevent breaking the air bubbles. When the baking time is up, insert a silver knife into the center of the cake. If it comes out clean, it is done. Close the oven door immediately and leave for one hour so that no cool drafts will touch the cake causing it to fall. If the knife does not come out clean, continue baking until it does. Perhaps your other cakes fell because they were not cooked through.

Stains made by tar are hard to remove, especially from cotton material. First, rub in petroleum jelly or lard to soften the stain, then sponge with a grease solvent such as benzene or carbon tetrachloride. Repeat treatment if traces of stain still remain. Finish by washing in warm sudsy water.

Most Women Need Arm Exercises for Decollete Fashions

By Ida Jean Kain

Decollete fashions prove one thing—that Venus is about the only gal past 29 who couldn't do with a bit of special arm exercises. Either that or sleeves.

It's the brutal truth. See for yourself. Stand before a mirror with the bare arms straight out, shoulder level. What happens to the "fleshy" part of the upper arm? This contour should be firm and round, not pendulous. But embonpoint gravitates all too soon to unused muscles, and the backs of the upper arms represent a muscular "dead" area.

It isn't that arms don't get enough work—exactly. They get plenty in housework. But those particular muscles, the triceps, are not brought into the action. Most of the everyday activities call on the biceps—the muscles on the front of the arms.

It takes a special exercise technique to reach the back arm muscles. An ideal exercise is a punching bag . . . the punch should be straight from the shoulders. A good makeshift is to suspend an ordinary sofa pillow in a doorway and punch the stuffings out of it! It's more forceful than shadow boxing.

And here's an exercise anyone can do . . .

Stand with chest and arms against a wall, and, using the muscles of the arms, push away from the wall. Then, resisting with the arm muscles, touch chest to wall again. Be careful in doing this exercise not to let the small of the back sink in or it will give you a sway back. Keep the adominal muscles pulled up and in, the back straight, and the hips tucked under, and you have a streamlining exercise to boot.

You can work out your own routine. Any exercise in which there is vigorous thrusting motion tones the triceps. Or arm exercise taken with the arms out at shoulder level effectively uses the muscles—the rule is to have the arms more horizontal than perpendicular, and to tense upper arm muscles while exercising. Just standing with the arms in this position and shaking them thoroughly is a good stunt . . . "shimmy" fashion.

Tiny circles and swings will help you to get your grip. In circling, keep the radius very small. In swinging, try to touch the arms together in back—that straightens you right out.

If you are really good, you might try lying face downward on the floor, palms on floor in front of chest, and by sheer muscle power hoist yourself up until arms are straight. If you can do that one, chances are you don't need arm exercises—or sleeves either.

U. S. Considers Evacuating 4000 Nationals From Palestine

By the United Press

The State Department admitted concern yesterday over the safety of some 4000 Americans in Palestine, and said it is considering plans to evacuate them if more serious fighting breaks out.

Michael J. McDermott, department press officer, said the wives and children of foreign service personnel "probably will be brought out" in any event.

He added that the department also is considering opening a consulate at the port of Haifa as a "convenience" to other United States citizens who might want to leave.

McDermott emphasized that the United States has "no present intention" of sending troops into Jerusalem to guard the American consulate-general.

Senator Warren Magnuson (D., Wash.) meantime urged the department to lift the embargo on arms shipments to Palestine. He said that any delay "may be measured in human life."

He said in a letter to Secretary George C. Marshall that 37 million dollars' worth of surplus United States war material was transferred to Arab League states before the embargo last December.

U. S. citizens in Palestine cannot be compelled to withdraw. But those who remain or who participate in the fighting would lose the rights of American protection or intervention.

Those who join either the Arab or Jewish forces also will face possible revocation of their passports.

One Arab Wounded In Quietest Day Since Vote

Jerusalem, Jan. 23 (U.P.).—This was the quietest day in Palestine since the partition vote on November 31.

American Woman Slain, Jap Testifies

Tokyo, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—An American woman dancer died heroically on the deck of a Japanese submarine, scorning a blindfold and calling goodby in Japanese to her executioners, a surprise witness at the war crimes trial related today. His disclosure ended a search of nearly four years for the missing woman.

Mrs. Brittain

The woman was Mrs. Verna Gordon Brittain, 33, a native of San Francisco and wife of Laurie Brittain, British manager for the Nestle Food Co. in Penang, Straits Settlements.

The witness was Jiro Nakahara, 28, Hawaiian-born Japanese who said he was a crew member of the submarine and acted as interpreter for Mrs. Brittain.

Nakahara was a surprise witness in the trial of Hideki Tojo and 24 other former leaders of Japan. His testimony was in rebuttal to the denial of Admiral Shigetaro Shimada, onetime chief of the naval staff, that he ordered execution of survivors of torpedoings.

Nakahara said Mrs. Brittain was en route to join her husband in Calcutta when the Dutch ship Tjsalak was torpedoed in March, 1944.

He said the submarine commander declared he had orders to execute all except persons "of importance" wanted for questioning.

"The senior officer told me to ask her if she wanted to be blindfolded and her hands tied," Nakahara testified. "She said she did not.

"Just before she left, she said 'Sayonara'—Japanese for goodbye. It was addressed to all the crew."

Mrs. Knight was sitting on the sidelines as rival teams warmed up for the contest at the high school in Darlington Monday night. After the ball hit her she became ill and went home. She was brought to the hospital here Tuesday afternoon.

Anne Greets Mihai With Kiss

Davos, Switzerland, Jan. 23 (A.P.).—Princess Anne of Bourbon-Parma came to Switzerland today and met former King Mihai of Romania.

The 24-year-old Danish princess came from Luxembourg, where she interrupted her journey two weeks ago to see the former king almost immediately after his abdication of December 30. Mihai's aides said at the time they did not think an immediate marriage was opportune.

Interviewed today, Mihai said there would be no immediate announcement of an engagement, but Anne's father, Prince Rene, said at St. Moritz, "They're engaged all right."

Anne and her mother, Princess Margrethe, were met at the station by Mihai, who was wearing a ski costume. Smiling happily, Princess Anne rushed into Mihai's arms. Then moving rapidly, they got into Mihai's jeep and he raced photographers and reporters to the Derby Hotel. Mihai won.

Maj. Jacques Vergotti, Mihai's aide, said the couple planned to remain at the hotel two or three weeks.

Tax Measures Jolt Virginia Assembly

Witten Proposes 3 Per Cent Sales Levy, Whitehead Selects Tobacco as Target

Richmond, Va., Jan. 23 (AP).—New taxation and the first full dress floor speech tore into the calm of what started out to be a quiet session of the Virginia General Assembly today.

The pace picked up with the introduction of a bill by Delegate Robert Whitehead of Nelson County to tax cigarettes, cigars, and accelerated when Dr. Jack W. Witten, delegate from Tazewell, tossed in a 3 per cent general sales tax bill.

But it reached top pitch when Whitehead took the floor of the House to call for far more than the Governor asked for the school program and adjure the legislators:

"Don't cry and cringe when we ask you to pay about one half for education that you now pay for liquor."

Other Bills Introduced

The day also saw introduction of bills that would:

1. Raise the cost of hunting and fishing licenses.

2. Require referenda among the voters of any area proposed to be annexed to a city with the provision that no annexation could be effected if the voters turned down the proposal.

3. Amend the State's anti-gambling code to exempt religious, fraternal and patriotic organizations, thus permitting them to conduct fund-raising raffles or lotteries.

4. Eliminate the 2-cents-a-gallon rebate now granted on purchases of aviation gasoline.

5. By Delegate Robert McCandlish, of Fairfax—to incorporate the town of Vienna, in Fairfax County.

To Raise $7,750,000

The 50-year-old Whitehead, whose bill would put a three-cent a pack tax on cigarettes, a half-cent tax on cigars selling eight to 10 cents and a one-cent tax on cigars selling for more than a dime, explained that it was designed to raise an estimated $7,750,000 yearly. Dr. Witten's general sales tax would bring in about $37,500,000 a year, he said.

The Nelson County delegate said that the Governor's tax program designed to bring in about $14,000,000 a year simply was not enough if the State intended to support adeq ate school and hospital programs and afford some relief to the hard-pressed localities.

He said his tobacco tax bill was "the answer to Virginia's prayer."

"Oh, I know there will be a hue and cry from the tobacco interests," he said, " . . . but if the people like tobacco let them pay for the privilege of smoking it just like they pay the excise tax for drinknig beer."

Whitehead said "It is a disgrace and a reflection on the intelligence of our people" that wine and beer sales in 1946 were 134 million dollars while the State government was providing 59 million dollars for public schools.

He pointed to the $150 average annual pay boost proposed by Governor Tuck for the teachers and contrasted this to a raise in pay of more than $1000 proposed for the chief justice of the Supreme Court and associate justices and $850 raises proposed for judges of lower courts.

At the end of Whitehead's address, Delegate Witten said that "the gentleman from Nelson intrigues and bewilders me at the same time."

The Witten sales tax measure, which carried the name of Delegate V. C. Smith of Grundy as co-patron, would put a tax of 3 per cent on all retail sales with certain exceptions.

One Third to Localities

Under this proposal two thirds of the proceeds from the sales tax would go to the State and one third to the localities as a credit against further increases in local real estate taxes and on the basis of population.

The Witten-Smith bill would exempt from the sales tax by manufacturers and producers for resale; sales of feed, gasoline, seed and fertilizer; sales to the State and its subdivisions, sales to the Federal Government, sales of Bibles and school textbooks, sales of second hand articles and sales of medicine. Also exempt would be sales of farm products by farmers and sales of sea products by commercial fishermen.

Wholesalers and retailers throughout the State would be required to keep careful records. Taxes would be paid monthly by the merchants and penalties up to 100 per cent of the amount of the tax would be imposed in cases of fraud.

The tax would begin on sales of 15 cents. One cent would be levied on sales of from 15 to 34; 2 cents from 34 to 67, and 3 cents from 67 to $1.

Both the sales tax bill and the tobacco tax bill went to the House finance committee.

Diamond Courier Arrested At Airport in Loss of Gems

New York, Jan. 23 (AP).—A 38-year-old diamond courier was arrested aboard a Europe-bound plane at LaGuardia Feld today in connection with the disappearance of 170,000 in diamonds which he said were lost on a flight to this country ealier this month.

The courier, Allan Light, a naturalized American citizen, now lives in Brussels.

Queens County officials charged Light with grand larceny and embezzlement and, alerting a possible international smuggling ring, called on the FBI and the United States Customs Bureau to aid in the investigation.

Light arrived here January 14 by plane from Antwerp. Police quoted him as saying he had been commissioned by a diamond agent in Belgium to smuggle the gems into the United States, but that he became ill on the flight and lost them. He said, according to officers, the diamonds were concealed on his person in a small rubber tube.

Elias Steinberg, a Brussels diamond merchant visiting in this country, advised police that Licht was leaving by plane for Switzerland.

Steinberg said he owned a third interest in the $170,000 worth of diamonds but denied to police that Licht had been told to smuggle in the gems.

Police said Licht had $6000 in American currency and $4000 in foreign money when arrested.

Vote Backs Signing Of Non-Red Status

By The Associated Press

The CIO-Shoe Workers are voting "overwhelmingly" to eliminate three vice presidencies in order to sign non-Communist affidavits under the Taft-Hartley law, Secretary-Treasurer James J. Mitchell said yesterday.

The ballots will be counted by tellers Monday but Mitchell told a reporter that notification from local unions showed 21,000 members up to now in favor of changing the union constitution to 1000 against the proposal.

The Shoe Workers' vice presidents whose posts would be done away with are William Thornton of Boston, Julius Chane of Chicago, and Rocco Francischini of New York. Crane had refused to sign and all three offices would have to be eliminated by the constitutional amendment in order to meet the Taft-Hartley Act requirements.

Some Chicago Teachers Start Sitdown Strike on Pay Delay

Chicago, Jan. 23 (AP). — Some teachers began a sitdown strike, a city-wide walkout of teachers was threatened, and several thousand students went home today when approval of the Board of Education's record $96,972,000 tax levy was held up, postponing payday for the teachers.

Robert Lakemacher, principal of Tilden Technical High School, said about half of that institution's student body of 6000 went home while the teachers attended a protest meeting.

Hobart H. Sommers, Austin High School principal, estimated that 20 to 25 per cent of the 5200 students there walked out when 150 of the 200 teachers left classes.

Many of the 60 members of the men's teachers club at Lane Technical High School began a sitdown strike although other teachers continued to conduct classes, Principal James H. Smith said.

The Chicago Teachers' Union (AFL), which said it represents 7000 of the city's 14,000 public school teachers, ordered its members to vote on whether they would strike if their pay checks were not issued Monday.

The Chicago Teachers' Federation, a professional organization of teachers, notified Mayor Martin J. Kennelly that it might resort to a lawsuit to force the council "to do its duty."

Funds Marked For Arlington Mental Clinic

By Donald Olsen
Post Reporter

State and county funds totaling $18,000 are tentatively being earmarked to set up a mental hygiene clinic in Arlington County.

County Manager A. T. Lundberg said he understood that the clinic, scheduled to open February 1, would operate under:

1. A $6000 sum allocated by Arlington's County Board to operate its alcoholic clinic, now under way, and

2. A $12,000 sum to be provided by the State from funds now in the hands of the Virginia Department of Mental Hygiene and Hospitals.

Services Planned

If the mental clinic plan is approved by the county board, Lundberg said he understood it would provide:

Consultant service for county schools, dealing in problems of truancy, retardation, speech defects, reading and personality problems.

Aid for Arlington's Welfare Department in family counseling, study of marital difficulties and divorce problems, and consultant service for the county trial justice in handling referrals on juvenile, drunk, larceny, or cruelty charges.

The clinic would operate in the Arlington Health Department, 1800 N. Edison st., and would absorb the present alcoholic clinic as part of its functions.

Conference Slated

Lundberg said he would confer Thursday with Dr. Joseph E. Barrett, commissioner of the department of mental hygiene and hospitals, to go further into clinic plans.

The clinic plans have been pushed by State Senator Charles R. Fenwick after consultation in Richmond with Dr. Barrett. On Thursday, Arlington Health Officer Dr. R. G. Beachley joined the discussion in the Virginia Capital.

If plans mature, Arlington County will join Fairfax and Alexandria in providing consultative service for mental illness. Both other areas now operate such a service.

Nonpartisan Vote Studied For Arlington

Arlington County Democrats are considering return of partisan primaries in school and county board races, Harley M. Williams, Better Government League chairman, disclosed yesterday.

Tacit approval of partisan elections, Williams said, was given by the County Democratic Executive Committee in a meeting Thursday night. Last fall, both races were nonpartisan.

Harrison Mann, Democratic executive committee chairman, yesterday declined to comment on Thursday night's meeting.

According to Williams, committee member James Franklin proposed that the Democratic executive group back a State act setting up a referendum on the use of party labels in the two elections.

Franklin's resolution was defeated, Williams added. Then Committeeman Thomas Broyhill asked the group to back partisan elections in principle.

The executive committee, Williams said, ruled the resolution unnecessary and said a Democratic primary will be held for one county board vacancy next fall "unless a resolution is mode to the contrary."

Last fall's county board race was made nonpartisan by joint agreement of the Democratic and Republican parties.

But in 1946, Democrats backed Board Chairman Edmund Campbell for another term against Daniel A. Dugan, an independent, who was elected in the year's biggest political upset.

Schnabel Gives Moving Piano Recital

(Reprinted from yesterday's final edition.)

By Paul Hume

There are signs of greatness in artists which seem to appear with maturity. Artur Schnabel displayed these in his recital last night in Constitution Hall.

It is interesting, however, that he showed the same depth of insight, the same profundity of musical thought in his recitals more than a decade ago. We have seldom heard such delicacy of phrasing as marked his offerings by Schubert and Mozart. Nor do we know of three other pianists now playing publicly who could give so moving, so Olympian a reading of the last of Beethoven's 32 sonatas.

To open a concert with the quiet, poetic measures of Schubert's G Major, dating from 1826, requires the same emotional stability that one hears in an authoritative beginning to Beethoven's fourth piano concerto. To carry this same sonata through as Schnabel did requires a Schnabel or a Casadesus. The thoughtful contemplation of music as it unfolds under one's fingers is an art most modern pianists no longer attempt.

These same characteristics flowed through a B Flat sonata of Mozart. This work, not listed in Mozart's piano sonatas, is sometimes heard as a violin and piano sonata, although the violin part was adapted by a later writer. In its original form it gave last night's recitalist further opportunities for perfection of spirit with an utter command of classic style.

In the great C Minor sonata of Beethoven, Schnabel showed his mightiest interpretive gifts. Not that the sonata is the most difficult technically, for Beethoven and others have written music harder to play. But the mood of the piece, the restraint, the sense of timing, the whole thing is on that level of intense introspection which is matched only in the last string quartets, and the adagio of the last Symphony. For these moments, Schnabel had everything.

His recital, which included the Chromatic Fantasy and Fugue of Bach, demanded and received the most rapt attention of both artist and audience. In such recitals music reaches its greatest heights. For this we have always, but far too infrequently, to thank both artist and art itself.

The encoreless ovation at the close of the evening was fitting tribute to a figure unique on our concert stage today.

Man Collects Rooms

'Secret's' That Sort of Movie

By Richard L. Coe

THE REMARKABLE RAREFIED horrors of a man who collects rooms—that's right, r-o-o-m-s—are painstakingly detailed at the Capitol in "Secret Beyond the Door."

Such a case, of course, is something quite beyond a reporter who's just able to meet the rent on a three-room apartment. It is a hobby of the rich that is a closed book to me, but, with Joan Bennett and Michael Redgrave to illustrate the man's tragedy under the imaginative direction of Fritz Lang, one can sympathize with their adventures without believing them.

It is heartening, however, to be shown that even though Joan Bennett is incredibly beautiful and has rashings of money, she certainly has a terrible time with her love life. This law of compensation finds Joan unable to find a suitable husband among New York's teeming millions. On a holiday in Mexico she does come across a man who makes her heart go bump.

This fellow is played by Michael Redgrave and at first seems a charming guy. But the turn of a key in a lock or a whiff of lilac are likely to spin him into a murderous frenzy.

When he sends for her to come to his home—that's the sort of chap he is—Joan finds a few things she hadn't expected: a bookish son of whose existence she was ignorant, a batty secretary who veils her face to cover some fading scars and a collection of rooms—original rooms, mind you—of historical and lurid murder cases.

Here Joan's upper-bracket schooling comes into play. She defeats a yen to run away and determines to fight out her husband's baffling mania. With these clues an experienced cinemaddict can tell you that Michael's plotting to murder Joan, a fiendish end which Joan avoids by remembering her basic Freud. Followers of Philip Wylie will know that Momism is the cause of it all.

Gene Sheldon on Stage

This story of high-life hobbies and neuroses is from a novel by Rufus King and has been pounced on with enthusiasm if not complete coherence by the skilled Fritz Lang. It was he, you may recall, who directed such films as "M," "Metropolis," "The Girl in the Moon," "Woman in the Window" and "Scarlet Street." Lang knows all the horror tricks from fire and fog to shadowy hallways and plasters them through his latest.

As one says every time she appears on the screen, Miss Bennett never looked lovelier. Redgrave, in his first American-made film, has a weird assignment and whatever he doesn't bring to the performance certainly isn't missed. There are some amusing lines for Natalie Schafer, as a worldly matron, and Barbara O'Neil and Anne Revere lend their repressed faces to the proceedings.

It's all very strange and, alas, sometimes a bit laughable.

The Capitol's stage bill has two headliners — the pantomimist Gene Sheldon and the satiric dancers, Harrison and Fisher. The former's act is skillfully amusing and the latter garner laughs with their suave spoofings. Strongman Arthur La Felur and Songstress Mimic Ann Russell complete the bill.

"CAROUSEL" completes a record-breaking three weeks at the National tonight, which reminds us that we've heard a lot of comment on the fine dancing of Betta Striegler, the young girl who dances the daughter of Julie and Billy in that last-act ballet. This is the California youngster's first Broadway show and the lonesome charm she gives to Louise is certainly one of the finer performances in "Carousel." . . . Dusty Worrall, who's danced her way from England to South America, is "The Younger Miss Snow" in that ballet and she's mighty fetching, too . . . Programscanners who've been wondering if Singer Mary Ann Mattson is any relation to Mr. Snow's portrayer, Eric Mattson, are right. She is his daughter, and if she masters her dad's singing skill she should have a career ahead of her. It's not often you run across a father and daughter playing together on our stages.

TODAY brings several film specials . . . The Spanish Embassy is showing some Spanish documentaries at 10 a. m. at the Calvert Theater. While it's an invitation affair, you may be able to wangle one by calling the Spanish Embassy . . . This afternoon at 2:30, a special children's matinee of a Chaplin Festival is being unreeled by Community Education, 914 20th st. nw. The Chaplain program will be repeated tomorrow night at 8:15.

Father's Illness Prompts New Plea For Missing Girl

Newton, N. J., Jan. 23 (AP).—A new appeal was issued to police today to press the search for 18-year-old Ann Lorenzo, who disappeared from Hood College in Frederick, Md., January 6—because her father is seriously ill.

Miss Lorenzo

Mrs. Peter Lorenzo said "we hold nothing against her" and "all will be forgiven" if the girl has married.

Ann disappeared from the school the morning after returning from Newton, where she spent the Christmas holidays. On the afternoon of January 6 she applied for a marriage license in Elkton, Md.

Police believe that Ann and Fred Stepongzi of Newton, named on the application, may have got married in another State and headed for California.

Cabbie Killed in Crash Near Fredericksburg

Fredericksburg, Va., Jan. 23 (AP).—William H. Duffey, 28, a taxicab driver of Falmouth, Va., was killed instantly this afternoon in a head-on collision between two cars on Route 1, 7 miles north of here.

State police said Duffey's cab, headed south, was in collision with a northbound car carrying Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Hark of Philadelphia. The Harks were hurt slightly.

Police said they had not ascertained the cause of the collision.

Duffey was the son of Mrs. Della Duffey of Falmouth.

Clinics Held Able to Slash Cancer Deaths

Baltimore, Jan. 23 (AP).—If facilities and information available at present were fully utilized, Maryland's cancer death rate could be reduced by one fourth, county health officers were told today.

They heard Dr. W. Ross Cameron, director of the State Health Department's cancer control program, outline achievements of the project which currently has cancer detection clinics in 11 counties.

"Response of the public to these clinics has been almost overwhelming," Dr. Cameron said. "Some of the clinics have their appointment lists filled up for months."

Educational Work Stressed

Both he and Dr. Howard Jones of the Maryland branch of the American Cancer Society stressed the importance of educational work in the war on cancer.

Jones urged the health officers, who concluded a two-day quarterly meeting here today, to persist in the effort to bring the educational program, which he termed "almost ridiculously brief and simple," into full public awareness.

Earlier, Dr. Kenneth Jones discussed the future of Maryland's mental hygiene program, which is, uniquely, an integrated part of the Free State's public health work.

Dr. Jones, lent to the health department by the United States Public Health Service, said the plan envisaged the mushrooming of mental hygiene clinics in the counties somewhat like the cancer detection units.

In discussing the latter, Dr. Cameron reported that during the past year some 2500 persons had been examined and cancer diagnosed in about 25, or 1 per cent of them.

Several Clinics Operating

Detection clinics at present are located in Anne Arundel, Calvert, Caroline, Carroll, Cecil, Charles, Frederick, Howard, Queen Anne's, Washington and Wicomico Counties.

About 20 physicians, staff members of the Johns Hopkins and University of Maryland Hospitals, travel into the counties to perform the clinical work. The use of local physicians has not proved practicable, Cameron said.

The mental hygiene program, which got underway in 1945, is less advanced than the cancer program. It currently has no funds other than $21,000 appropriated for it by the Federal Government.

Nevertheless, a few clinics are already in operation. One all-purpose unit is functioning at College Park, but it is financed by the U. S. Public Health Service.

Ultimately, clinics patterned after the Prince Georges model will dot the State. They will aid social agencies, serve as counsellors to schools, and provide early diagnoses of mental maladies.

It will take from three to five years to get the program into full swing, Dr. Jones asserted.

He pointed out that part-time clinics staffed by psychologists and psychiatrists are already working in Rockville, Montgomery County, at Westminister, Elkton, and Cumberland.

Springfield hospital at Cumberland offers an all-purpose clinic, though not as extensive as the one in Prince Georges County. It is operated by hospital staff members.

Marylanders Healthy in '47, Births at Peak

By The Associated Press

The Maryland State Health Department looked back through its 1947 records yesterday and decided Maryland had a healthy year, with some significant declines in death rates.

Besides that, there were 26.1 new babies for each 1000 of population—a new record in the 31 years Maryland has participated in the United States Census Bureau's registration system.

The health department was encouraged by a drop in the tuberculosis death rate from 56.6 to 55.5 for each 100,000 of population—the lowest yet recorded.

Actually, the death rate last year was 11 per 1000 as compared with 10.9 in 1946, but the department had an explanation: People are living much longer these days, so oldsters make up a greater percentage of the population.

The increased birth rate also contributes to the increased number of deaths, for infant and maternal mortality always are important factors in the death rate.

The Health Department said in its preliminary report on 1947's vital statistics that infant and maternal deaths continue to show a decline in rate and have reached a point where no appreciable improvement can be expected.

The death rate among the white population was 10.4 in 1947, as compared with 10.2 in 1946, and among Negroes it dropped from 14.3 to 14.1.

The Health Department said it was gratifying that the rate among Negroes continued to decline and pointed out that it is now as low as that for whites only a few years ago.

The only increase was in deaths from heart disease.

Md. Asking Price Parity On Tobacco

By The Associated Press

Maryland tobacco men "are asking Congress for provisions for parity prices for the first time," Representative Sasscer (D., Md.) said yesterday.

The Government guarantees growers of certain crops, including several types of tobacco, 90 per cent of parity if crop controls are voted by the farmers.

"Heretofore," Sasscer said, "Maryland people have shied away from parity. They've always opposed parity up to now. But the market broke during the last week of sales of the 1947 crop. It fell off an average of about 15 cents" a pound.

Senators Tydings (D., Md.) and O'Conor (D., Md.) introduced a bill yesterday to amend the Agricultural Adjustment Act "to give Maryland a better base period for tobacco than the law now allows," he said.

Parity is a price the Agriculture Department calculates is equally fair to farmers and consumers.

The changes in the tobacco law proposed by the Maryland legislators would, Sasscer added, "establish a new base period from which to compute parity prices on Maryland tobacco."

The Tydings-O'Conor amendment reads: "In the case of all kinds of tobacco except Maryland burley and flue-cured, the base period shall be the period from August, 1919, to July, 1929; in case of Maryland, January, 1936, to December, 1945; in the case of burley and flue-cured, August, 1934, to July, 1939."

Sasscer commented that Maryland tobacco growers "have never exercised the referendum" before.

Va., Md. Close Fishery Talks

Richmond, Va., Jan. 23 (AP).—Attorney General Hall Hammond of Maryland left here today after conferring with Attorney General Harvey B. Apperson on proposed legislation to carry out recommendations made by a joint Maryland-Virginia study commission on fishery conservation in the Potomac River and the Chesapeake Bay.

The conference between the two attorneys general began yesterday.

Hammond, Apperson and commission members from both States also met with Governor Tuck and discussed various phases of the matter.

Apperson said after the meeting today that the talks were on "purely legal" phases of the recommended legislation and said nothing was completed.

C. O'Conor Goolrick of Fredericksburg, who was chairman of the Maryland-Virginia study commission, announced after yesterday's conference that a partial draft of proposed legislation had been drawn.

The report of the commission, issued January 1, proposed a joint authority for control of fisheries—except oystering—in the bay and its tributaries and control of oystering as well as other fishery matters in the Potomac.

Also attending the meeting were W. Tayloe Murphy of Warsaw, F. W. C. Webb and Robert H. Archer, all of whom were members of the study commission. The latter two men were Maryland representatives.

Chain Gang Fugitive Faces Fate Monday

Annapolis, Md., Jan. 23 (AP).—Brent L. Merrick, 53, who escaped from a Florida chain gang 23 years ago, will learn Monday whether he must return to the Southern State to face charges.

Merrick, a native of Talbot County, related how he had gone to Florida shortly after World War I. In Melbourne, Fla., he said, he fell in love with a girl "nearly 18."

He denied he had any improper relations with her, but was convicted of carnal knowledge after they had been found together in a Miami hotel. He was sentenced to 5 years in the Florida State Prison.

Two months later he escaped and went to Philadelphia, where he worked as a salesman and meat clerk. He later joined the merchant marine.

Last year he was sent to the Maryland House of Correction on an assault charge, and officials learned that he was wanted in Florida. Judge William I. McWilliams said today:

"Nothing would please me more than to turn this man loose."

Merrick, stooped and lean, declared, "If they send me back, I know I would never make it. I'm too old."

Md. Muskrats Being Decimated By Disease

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 23 (AP).—Maryland's muskrat population is being decimated by a mysterious disease, according to Ernest A. Vaughn of the State Game and Inland Fish Commission.

Dead muskrat are being found in nearly perfect external condition, he said. Muskrat population along the Eastern seaboard has been declining for the past five years, he indicated.

Meanwhile, raccoon population is at an all-time high due to a downswing in popularity of 'coon-skin coats and caps. Authorities are investigating the possibility that they may be preying on muskrat. The State currently pays a $6 bounty for live raccoons taken in restricted marsh areas where the population is great.

Patrolman Resigns After Jury Testimony

Charles Town, W. Va., Jan. 23 (AP).—Mayor G. P. Morrison announced today he had accepted the resignation of Patrolman Perry Wilson, after whose testimony the grand jury passed a resolution asking an investigation of the police department.

Wilson was reported to have told the grand jury he entered a number of residences without a search warrant while looking for a felony suspect.

Leap Year Conspiracy Leaves Bachelors Out in Cold

I've gotten many letters about the local housing situation from folks with children.

Their usual complaint is that landlords are intensely disinterested in the procreation of prospective new tenants. "Positively no dogs, cats or children."

Yesterday's mail turned up an interesting variation on this theme. Louis Rossi of 1437 Clifton st. nw. added a new category to the proscription list: bachelors.

Louis has been looking for housing. He says he hasn't been able to find any because he is a bachelor, and landlords prefer to rent their small units to single girls. That leaves the single guys out in the cold.

And it forms one more link in the great Leap Year conspiracy. Pretty soon we'll be seeing classified ads reading:

OBJECT MATRIMONY—Home-loving bachelor would like to meet small house or apartment and/or girl living in same. Prefer blonde with pleasing disposition and long-term lease.

PIED TYPE DEPT.

Jerre Smythe of the Fairfax Hotel suspects that our paratroopers are going to resent this sentence which appeared in a recent edition of one of our afternoon contemporaries:

"The term paratroops actually means 'party troops.'"

On behalf of an auto rental firm, the paper posted the notice:

"Attention business executives—lease a new sedan. It is often cheaper to leave a car than to buy one."

Yeah—but if you leave it too long, you have to buy it back from the cops.

PERSONAL NOTES

Betty Alice Fife, John Roberts Apts., Alexandria, Va.: You make a good point when you say that Mr. Truman's wish to change the appearance of the White House indicates that he is a progressive. I used the same argument on my teachers when I tried to change the spelling of words like "through" and "neighbor"—but they took a dim view of it.

ᔓᔕ

ADD NAMES

Will the long parade of strange-place names ever end?

Mrs. A. L. Harrison of 43 Cloud st., Front Royal, Va., reminds us that Virginia's Warren County offers Relief and Refuge for those in need, and Happy Creek for anybody who's down in the dumps.

Mrs. William Moss of 49 Chinquapin Village, Alexandria, Va., submits the name of her home town—Rust, Mich.

Incidentally, Chinquapin isn't a bad name, either. It's from an American Indian word meaning "dwarf chestnut."

James A. Hoyt used to be president of a bank in the South Carolina town formerly called Frog Level, but now renamed Prosperity.

Like the good Democratic National Committeewoman that she is, Mrs. Emma Guffey Miller of 2929 Benton pl. nw. says: "I rise in the defense of Slippery Rock, Pa., where we spend half of each year on our farm."

This deep concern is no doubt occasioned by a continuing battle to dislodge the opposition party, thereby setting off a political landslide with one Slippery Rock.

Dolly Settle recently asked whether anybody knew the location of Flint Hill, Va. Jimmie Dennis, who lives there, writes:

"Sure, lots of people know the location of Flint Hill. And, by the way—I know Dolly Settle. She's a very cute girl who loves West Point, or at least somebody who goes there."

You don't sound too happy about it, Jimmie. Is she that cute?

UPS AND DOWNS

But nasty on the street.
And don't forget that both can spin
A body off his feet.

Jerry Boin

10 O'CLOCK SCHOLARS

Anguished parents of George Washington University students complain that the current examination week is playing hob with family schedules.

The exams begin at 8 a. m., causing some of these folks to erupt in verse like this:

We rouse ourselves while it's still night
And dress by artificial light.
We cook our breakfast, and then pray
We'll stay awake 'til end of day.

For parents have to work and strive
To pay the fees and keep alive.
So Alma Mammy, have a heart!
And give exams a later start.

"A CUB DOES HIS BEST"

Cubmaster Samuel W. Lank of 4500 Chelsea lane, Bethesda, Md., can certainly be proud of his Cub Scout Pack 232.

The pack recently played Santa to the shut-ins at Children's Hospital, to the tune of about 100 presents bought with money earned through paper salvage.

And on February 13 the pack will sponsor a special showing of a Roy Rogers movie at the Bethesda Theater. The use of the theater is being donated by the management, and all proceeds will be turned over to CARE, for European relief.

How's that for Cub Scouts—all under the age of 12?

OVERHEARD

Patient driver of crowded bus: "Please, folks—do like you do in church; fill up the rear." (A. B. Cook, 3905 22d st. ne.)

VAGRANT THOUGHT

Are the movies getting worse or am I getting to be an old grouch?

Royall Admits UMT Campaign

By Drew Pearson

Bluff, genial Secretary of the Army Royall has a unique way of combining charm with an ability to put Cabinet colleagues on the hot spot.

His retention of Ed Pauley as special assistant to the Army has caused Harry Truman more trouble than any other recent political bombshell. Perhaps more fundamental, though little noticed, has been the hole into which Royall placed his friend, the Attorney General.

Pearson

He has given Attorney General Tom Clark the alternative of either prosecuting Royall or violating his own oath of office by failure to prosecute.

The law in question is Section 201, Title 18 of the United States Code which declares it to be a criminal offense to use Federal funds to influence legislation before Congress. The law is clear and categoric. It provides no exceptions or alibis.

Yet Royall has brazenly flouted the law in using more than $50,000 of Federal funds to propagandize for military conscription. On top of this, when called before Congress, he not only admitted he had violated the law, but said he had "no apologies to make."

First congressional report on Royall's activities was made July 23 by the House Expenditures Subcommittee, Representative Forrest Harness of Indiana, chairman.

How the Army Lobbied

This showed that the Army had spent $36,293 to produce a military-training propaganda film, plus $14,244 of the taxpayers' money to distribute the film. Also, the War Department had paid two civilians —Alan Coutts of New York City and Mrs. Arthur Woods, a former lieutenant colonel with a fine record in the Wac—$25 a day, plus expenses, to tour the country, drumming up public support for peacetime conscription.

The report also quoted former Assistant Secretary of War Howard C. Petersen as admitting that Mrs. Wood and Mr. Coutts were employed "to sell the (UMT) program to the public with the hope that the public would sell it to the Congress."

"Mrs. Woods admitted that she laid particular emphasis upon the spiritual values of universal military training in her discussions with Girl Scout groups," the Harness report stated, adding that she had endeavored to interest the national board of the Girl Scouts of America in showing "a plan for peace" at their meetings.

Harness also quoted the following paragraph from an Army-prepared "outline for veterans' radio panels": "The opposition to universal military training is generally not based on fact, but rather on such generalities as democracy, morals, aggression, education, and pacifism. The chief opponents, are parents, church groups, educators, subversive groups, and a large section of the public which does not think."

In other words, the Army was trying to tell veterans what they should say in radio broadcasts supposed to be voluntary efforts of the veterans themselves.

The Harness report further charged that numerous people "of all walks of life" had been flown in military planes at the taxpayers' expense to the Army UMT experimental camp at Fort Knox, Ky., where they were "conducted on tours of the unit by selected guides, who were able to sell the virtues of the plan under consideration."

Report Gathers Dust

This congressional report was approved by the entire committee —both Democrats and Republicans —even including Jim Wadsworth of New York, father-in-law of Stuart Symington, at that time Assistant Secretary of War for Air. It was then sent to the Justice Department.

There it has been gathering dust ever since. Inquiries at the Justice Department last week brought the reply from alleged Information Officer Leo Cadison that "the FBI is still investigating." That, however, is not true. From other sources it was ascertained that the FBI finished its report long ago and that it is highly unfavorable to Secretary Royall. It found him guilty of violating the law.

On top of all this Royall was called before the House Expenditures Subcommittee just a few days ago. This was when he brazenly refused to promise that he would not violate the law in the future.

Secretary Royall also violated the spirit of President Truman's repeated attempts to hold down prices when he advertised his 1947 Cadillac sedan for sale at $4200 after he had paid only $2925 for it. Royall first approached the Cadillac agency in Washington and asked them to buy the car. They offered him the regular list price. To do otherwise would have put them in the black market. But this high-up member of the official Truman family refused to sell for the legal price and advertised his car for sale at $4200. When this columnist and others called to inquire about the car somebody got worried and it was hurriedly withdrawn from sale.

Note: The Army and Congress might find it worth while to study the plan of former Congressman Kent Keller of Illinois for an American school army—a series of universities for underprivileged boys.

Big Business Vs. Little

Most interesting Senate race of the year is shaping up in Wyoming, where Judge Thurman Arnold, the trust-busting former Assistant Attorney General, plans to challenge one of the biggest businessmen in the State, GOP Senator Edward V. Robertson. The issue of big business vs. little business will be laid right on the line between them.

Robertson, born in Britain, came to Wyoming at the age of 31 and married the daughter of H. H. Rogers, a partner of old John D. Rockefeller. The Senator now manages the Coe ranch, one of the biggest in the State and owned by his brother-in-law. Backed by the big cattlemen, Robertson has one of the most isolationist, conservative records in the Senate.

Arnold, who will oppose him, comes from an old Wyoming family, once served as mayor of Laramie, had a sensational career in charge of the Antitrust Division and as Judge of the United States Court of Appeals. His economic theories are the exact opposite of Robertson's. It will be interesting to see which one Wyoming voters pick to represent them in the Senate.

John Walker, curator of the National Gallery, has just selected three paintings by James N. Rosenberg in behalf of the State Department, to be sent to American Embassies. Rosenberg is the 73-year-old painter who was one of New York's most successful lawyers. Eight years ago, when he finished his work in the Ivar Kreuger case, he decided that such an interesting case never would come to him again. He therefore retired as head of his law firm—which Sam Rosenman now heads—to devote all his time to painting. His works have been acquired by the country's top museums.

Jennie Lee, member of Parliament, addressed the Brooklyn College Chapter of the Students for Democratic Action, and was asked about the Labour government's attitude towards the Royal Family. "Just so long as they make Socialist speeches," she replied, "we get along well."

Jack Pearl, after all these years, is still seeking a play in which he can exhibit his dramatic talents. Pearl, a millionaire, vows: "I'd much rather have people say about me, 'There goes a great actor' than 'There goes a rich man.'"
